Greatest Campaign Since
Dry Amendment Passed
Will Focus on Class-

MOVE TO BEGIN AT ATLANTA MEET

Anti-Saloon League Joins
U. S. Forces in Effort To Educate Citizens To Observe Law.

Washington, June 23.—(United News).—The greatest prohibition educational campaign ever conceived since enactment of the 18th amendment is scheduled to get underway within a week, the government directing one force of dry campaigners and the Anti-Saloon League a second group.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran has detailed a woman, Miss Anna B.
Sutter, chief of the statistical section of the prohibition bureau, to lead the federal force. Her first task is to get the benefits of prohibition before every school child in the United States, some 30,000,000.

To Start Here.
Miss Sutter will go to Atlanta, Ga., on June 28, to attend the annual convention of the National Education Association. She will "lobby" with the instructors, passing out literature appealing for co-operation of every teacher in the development of a consciousness of the proper attitude toward this law and all laws.

Prohibition headquarters plans to spend about $100,000 this year in "selling" prohibition to the people.
Dr. Doran said the government's educational campaign would open with children and later be extended to the adult population.

Churches Join Rank.
Within a few months the country will be placarded with posters in postoffices, banks, railroad stations and other public places portraying the evils of drink and the happiness of temperance, Doran said.

FORMER GOVERNOR NAT. E. HARRIS SAID IMPROVING

Johnson City, Tenn., June 23.—(AP)
Although still dangerously ill, Nathaniel Edwin Harris, former governor of Georgia and president of the board of trustees of the Georgia School of Technology in Atlanta since founding of the institution, was somewhat improved today as compared with yesterday, his physician announced.

Mr. Harris, who is 83 years old and a Confederate veteran, is at his summer home in Hampton, Tenn., near here. The physician, Dr. J. L.
Cottrell, of Elizabethton, Tenn., said Mr. Harris was suffering from chronic Bright's disease, but his heart action still was fair. Mr. Harris was near death in a hospital in Macon, Ga., several weeks ago, but recovered sufficiently to come here. He was forced to be absent from the Georgia Tech commencement this year for the first time since the school began.

A's Win Odd Game Of 'Crucial Series' In Gotham, 7 to 4

Simmons, Foxx and Haas
Hit Homers To Drive
Wells to Cover; Gehrig
Gets 20th.

Associated Press Sports Writer.
New York, June 23.—(AP)—The Athletics finally increased their lead over the world champion New York Yankees to eight and one-half games by winning the last of the season's first crucial series, 7 to 4.

The winners outbit the losers by a bare margin of one but the A's blows were far more robust than those of the Yankees. The visitors' nine hits were good for 23 bases while the home club's eight ran for a total of only 13. Simmons, Foxx and Haas hit home runs for the Athletics, while Lou Gehrig drove one into the right-field stands for the Yanks, making his season's total an even 20. The attendance was only about 35,000, more than 10,000 less than either of the past two days.

Manager Miller Huggins for the third time in the series started a left-hander and for the third time saw him driven to cover. Ed Wells was the victim today, retiring for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Manager Mack, too, had to wave frantically to the far left field bull pen in the eighth to summon George Earnshaw to come to the rescue of Howard Ehmke, who until next to the last inning had completely baffled the Yankees sharpshooters.

HAAS ERRS.
Ehmke contributed to his own downfall with a wild throw in the eighth and Haas did not help the cause any when he permitted Gehrig's single to roll so far through him that Columbia Lou was able to circle for bases before the ball could be secured.

Earnshaw stopped the rally, with the assistance of a sparkling one-hand catch by Bishop of an apparent safe hit from Meusel and retired his opposition in order in the ninth. Mickey Cochran doing yeoman's chores for him when he plunged into the home team's dugout to grab and hold a foul fly from the bat of Pinch-Hitter Koenig.

The Athletics set out with stern determination to win the odd game of the series. Al Simmons, who has hit at a terrific pace in the series, opened the second inning with a long triple and scored when Foxx flied deep to left. Simmons' single-handed, furnished the next Miller run when he drove the ball into the left field stands for his fourth home run of the series and 18th of the season. Foxx, who was to be outdone by his colleague, sent the ball in almost the same spot a minute later. Gehrig got one more hit, a single, in the sixth, the blow being the Yankees' third hit from Ehmke.

A'S INCREASE LEAD.
The A's increased their lead in the seventh. Foxx walked and rode home on Miller's triple, the latter running his record of consecutive games in which he had hit safely to 23. Boley's single sent Miller's lead to two.

With Tom Zachary pitching in the eighth the leaders made two more.
After Bishop missed a third strike
Mule Haas hit far over Combs' head to deepest center field and made a home run inside the playing field.
Cochran followed with a double to left, raced to third when Simmons fled to Combs and counted on a single by Foxx.

The Yankees arranged a rally of a sort in the eighth. It was not enough to force Ehmke out of active participation. Combs bunted and when Ehmke threw the ball far into the outfield.

STATE HOLDS NEW CHARGE OF DEATH IN POWERS CASE

Two Witnesses Swear
Woman Tried To Hire
Them To Kill Wright,
Solicitor-General Says.

Macon, Ga., June 23.—(AP)—Should
the pending charges against Mrs. J.
C. Powers, 71-year-old landlady, in connection with the slaying of James W. Parks, boarder, fail to obtain conviction, additional charges will be lodged against her in connection with the death of Samuel H. Wright, on December 3, 1918, Solicitor-General
Charles H. Garrett today announced.

In the event that he fails to obtain conviction of Mrs. Powers in the Parks case, Solicitor Garrett said that he would direct that excavations be made about the premises of Mrs. Powers on the river road in Jones county, and also around her home in Vineville district of this city, in an effort to obtain additional evidence.

Mrs. Powers, who has been indicted as accessory before the fact in the slaying of Parks, is scheduled for trial on that charge July 22. Earl Manchester, another of her boarders, already has been convicted of the murder of Parks, which he confessed to he did on promise of Mrs. Powers to pay him $1,000 of the $14,000
life insurance she expected to collect.

Mrs. Powers, according to Mr. Garrett, collected $8,000 insurance from four companies for Wright's death.
She was both administratrix and assignee of Wright's estate, which consisted of life insurance of which she was named beneficiary. Wright was employed by Mrs. Powers as an overseer of a small farm in Jones county, near here.

Witnesses.
Mr. Garrett said today that he had obtained two witnesses who would swear that Mrs. Powers tried to employ them to kill Wright. Her affidavit, filed at the time of Wright's death, was false in many details, Mr.
Garrett asserted. He also said he had evidence that the alleged cause of death, given in the certificate of a now deceased physician as tuberculosis of the lungs, was incorrect.

"I have no doubt," said Mr. Garrett, "as to the outcome of Mrs. Powers' trial in connection with the slay-ing of Parks and consequently there is no necessity of filing further charges but I have investigated the death of Wright carefully and can file further charges if, for an unreasoned reason, conviction does not follow her trial for accessory before the fact in the Parks killing."

A civil suit, however, may grow out of the Wright case, Mr. Garrett said. As administratrix of Wright's estate she obtained $12,000 from her son-in-law, Lee H. Tharpe, and she never has been discharged as administratrix. Wright's relatives, including his mother, Mrs. J. S. Willey, of Monroe, N. C., and his brother, James J. Wright, of Clayton, N. C., received no proceeds from the estate and they would, according to Mr. Garrett, only have to show a murder plot to recover damages.

Mr. Garrett said such civil suit would have to be filed by the Wright heirs, if at all, but he had been in correspondence with them and understood they were contemplating such action.

PINNED BENEATH OVERTURNED AUTO FOR FIVE HOURS

After suffering intense agony with an automobile resting on his chest and legs for five hours near Vinings, Ga., John Martin, 18, of Marietta, Ga., was extricated from his overturned car about 7 o'clock Sunday night and brought to Grady hospital, where doctors reported that his worst injury was probably a fractured rib.

Martin, almost exhausted from severe pain for five hours, told attaches that about 2 o'clock he was en route to Vinings when a right front tire blew out, causing his car to be overturned, pinning him underneath.

The road is little traveled and about 7 o'clock two young boys came by and pulled him from beneath his car. He was taken to Vinings and J. B. Crow rushed him to Grady hospital.

Despite suffering, Martin never lost consciousness and was reported to be resting comfortably late Sunday night at the hospital.

Feared Lost in Atlantic

After two days and a night filled with conflicting reports of their safe landing at San Miguel island of the Azores group, Madrid has announced Francisco Franco, famous Spanish flyer (right) and his three companions who left Spain on a proposed one-stop flight to New York.

Major Ramon Franco and three companions took off from Cartagena, Spain, for New York, via the Azores and Halifax, planning also to return the same route, in a tri-motored hydroplane. Two of the companions are shown left: Captain Eduardo Gonzalez Galarza is above, and Captain Julio Ruiz de Alda below.

in these rescues.

Missing Link Believed Found In China Fossil Deposits

SCIENTISTS ATTACH GREAT IMPORT TO DISCOVERY

BY D. C. BESS,
United News Staff Correspondent.
Peking, June 23.—(United News).—
From twenty teeth and portion of skull and jaw, the harvest of eight years' gleaning in the limestone deposits near here, science may reconstruct the earliest progenitor of man
—the so-called link between animal and human.

Since the autumn of 1921 when in a group of important fossil discoveries investigators found a tooth undeniably that of a human or unknown mammal, an international group of scientists gathered here have been convinced that not only is the Peking man the oldest human remnant but that probably he was the immediate ancestor of man, linking him with the lower animals.

Discovery of the prehistoric human has been so gradual that the findings have not received the publicity scientists believe it deserves. Dr. J. C. Anderson, Swedish archaeologist, discovered the original mammal fossil. Dr. Walter Granger, chief paleontologist of the American Museum of Natural History was visiting Dr. Anderson at the time. After careful examination the fossils were shipped to Sweden for study and while undergoing laboratory examination the bone tooth was found.

Pathfinder Plane Will Leave Today To Map State Tour

Griffin, LaGrange, Columbus, Americus and Albany To Be Visited by Trail-Blazers Monday.

BY N. S. NOBLE,
City Editor, The Constitution.
With Albany, its first night's goal,
the "All-Georgia Air Tour" pathfinder plane leaves Candler field at 7 o'clock this morning on the first trail-blazing aerial cruise covering all Georgia in the history of aviation.

Nineteen years ago a Constitution motorcade started out to blaze a good roads trail. The autos of that vintage made 100 miles a day. Today, a cabin plane, much more comfortable than the finest motor car, will wing its way to Griffin, then to LaGrange, on to Columbus, carry a while at Americus, through 250 miles of Georgia soil and doing it with one and two-hour stops along the way.

That is aviation! This is the opening of the "Aerial Age." To those cities which have airports, and those communities which are air-minded travel the small private sporting plane, the larger mail and singlemotored passenger ships, the huge trimotored carriers with a capacity for tons of freight, human, mail and express.

Georgia is air-conscious. Atlanta has led the way, with Macon, Gains-ville, Columbus and a few other cities which have airports, and these cities great state there are cities and towns which have not realized the benefits aerial transportation means right
now. They have delayed planning their airports. They have waited to see which way the planes might fly.
And the planes are flying in every direction, and many of these cities not ready to receive them.

This morning an orange-colored passenger plane, one of the ships of the Southern Air Transport squadron, will mount into the wind above Atlanta and glide to the runways of half a dozen airports before a pathfinder party calls it a day's work and prepares for other like days to come.

Griffin will be the first stop at 8 o'clock. Then the party will fly to LaGrange for an hour's visit and conference, being forced to decline a luncheon engagement tendered by the city.

The burden of each is the same,
that agriculture will get no benefits from the sort of general revision that appears in prospect but on the contrary will be further penalized. The western republican-democratic confliction organized last week and democratic headquarters recently set up here will hammer away on this line
during the recess.

Brookhart declared
"should realize by this time they are following a blind trail in pursuing the tariff as a remedy for this distress."
It can help but little, even if revision is confined exclusively to agricultural products. When manufactured products are unduly taxed, the agricultural situation becomes so serious that it is necessary to direct attention of farmers to their peril.

The farm relief bill will probably be of some slight benefit to farmers,
but it is far from being a cure-all.
I contend that if anything resembling the charter revision committee of council, author of the measure which was approved Thursday and general spokesman for the annexationists, Sunday night was unable to announce his plans definitely, but made it perfectly clear that action of some kind will be taken at once.

He explained that, due to the various courses that may be pursued and the lack of any opportunity for conferences between the annexationists since the veto, he was unable to state what plan will be adopted by congress
by Mayor I. N. Ragdale's protestations of approval for the annexation scheme, as made following the veto, Alderman Gilliam stated that he would see him today to learn his views on the calling of a special council

HUGE LANDSLIDE LESSENS DEPTH OF PANAMA CANAL

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, June 23.—(AP)—A huge slide into Gaillard cut of about 250,000 cubic feet of material was officially reported today. The movement began on Friday evening from the east bank and spread over almost 700 feet of the canal bottom, reducing the depth of the center from 40 to 38 feet.

Two large dredges went to work as soon as the momentum of the movement slowed down. Although it was estimated that a month would be needed to clear away the debris it has not caused any interruption of traffic.

The slide occurred just north of the old Culebra slide, which in 1916 completed closed the canal.

STEAMER REPORTS FLARES AT SEA

Failure of Radio on Plane
Is Puzzle; Has Been Silent Since Friday
Take-Off.

Paris, June 23.—(AP)—A Havas dispatch from Madrid tonight said that Premier Primo De Rivera had informed the semi-official newspaper Noticiero Del Lunes that for the moment "the aviators must unhappily be considered lost."

He declared that the previous report, supposed to have been from Major Ramon Franco, who commanded the crew of four, of their safe arrival at the Azores and plans to resume their air voyage were "inexact."

Madrid, June 23.—(United News).
The Spanish government tonight abandoned hope that the trans-Atlantic seaplane of Commander Ramon Franco had arrived safely at the Azores and ordered several squadrons of seaplanes to start a search for the plane and its crew of four men.

Primo De Rivera announced the search in the government newspaper Noticiero Del Lunes.

The premier, after conferring with the minister of marine, ordered four Spanish destroyers from Galicia to join the search. One squadron of seaplanes from the Alcazar base and another from the Melilla base will search the seas where it is believed Franco might have landed.

No News Ever Received.
The government said there was no official news of the flight since Commander Franco left Alcazar base Friday.

The Portuguese gunboat, Zaires, already had started searching for the missing airplane in the Azores islands.
The Zaires left Ponta Delgada, Island of Azores, on Saturday morning and west towards Fayal island, which had been the scheduled stopping place of the Spanish plane on its projected flight across New York.

Meanwhile various reports which might have indicated the position of the plane were received.

One of these, announced by the Inca radio station at Horta, Fayal island, was from the Italian steamship Dredon, and indicated that Commander Franco might have flown
south of his course from Alcazar, Spain, to the Azores. The Dredon reported hearing "an airplane" early Saturday about 200 miles southeast of San Miguel, the most easterly of the Azores group. The weather was rainy.

Silent Radio Mystifies

Another and still more doubtful report, was received from the steamship Buffalo Bridge, via the Radio Marine Corporation at New York. It said a "flare of light" had been sighted about 1,410 miles east of New York and 540 miles south by east of Cape Race at 12:40 a. m. Sunday.

It was pointed out that the reported flare might have been a distress signal from a plane which had been forced down and was concealed by darkness.

While it would not have been impossible for the Spanish fliers to reach the position given by the Buffalo Bridge, it would appear to be contrary to all other reports of the flight. They were scheduled to stop at the Azores, and the Dredon report of "an airplane" indicated that they might be south instead of north of their course.

It also is difficult to explain the long silence of the plane's radio, which last indicated that Franco was approaching the Azores.

PARTLY CLOUDY IS WEATHER MENU GIVEN FOR TODAY

What seems to be the favorite prediction of the weather men was forthcoming Sunday night when the Washington bureau ordered "partly cloudy with possible thundershowers" as Atlanta's weather fare for today. The temperatures are expected to remain at about the same high level of the past few days with a very good chance that wandering showers will cool the city at irregular intervals.

After missing last Sunday the regular program of sabbath showers and sunshine was in order again this week. Between showers the mercury rose close to record-breaking levels for the fourth consecutive day, the showers seeming to fall in their appointed task of thoroughly cooling the atmosphere.

PROFESSOR-SLAYER ENTERS PLEA TODAY

State Moves To Block Insanity as Basis for Mercy.

Columbus, Ohio, June 23.—(AP)—Dr. James H. Snook, 49, deposed professor of Ohio State university, will be arraigned in common pleas court here tomorrow for the first-degree murder of Miss Theora K. Hix, his 25-year-old co-ed paramour.

Snook was indicted several days ago after confessing he slashed the girl's throat after beating her with a hammer during an altercation at a rifle range north of the city.

Dr. Snook's attorneys, John F. Seidel and E. O. Ricketts, said they will enter a "not guilty" plea in his behalf.

A report of three alienists on Dr. Snook's mental condition is expected Tuesday. The alienists were called by Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., yesterday to forestall an insanity plea which he feared the defense attorneys might attempt.

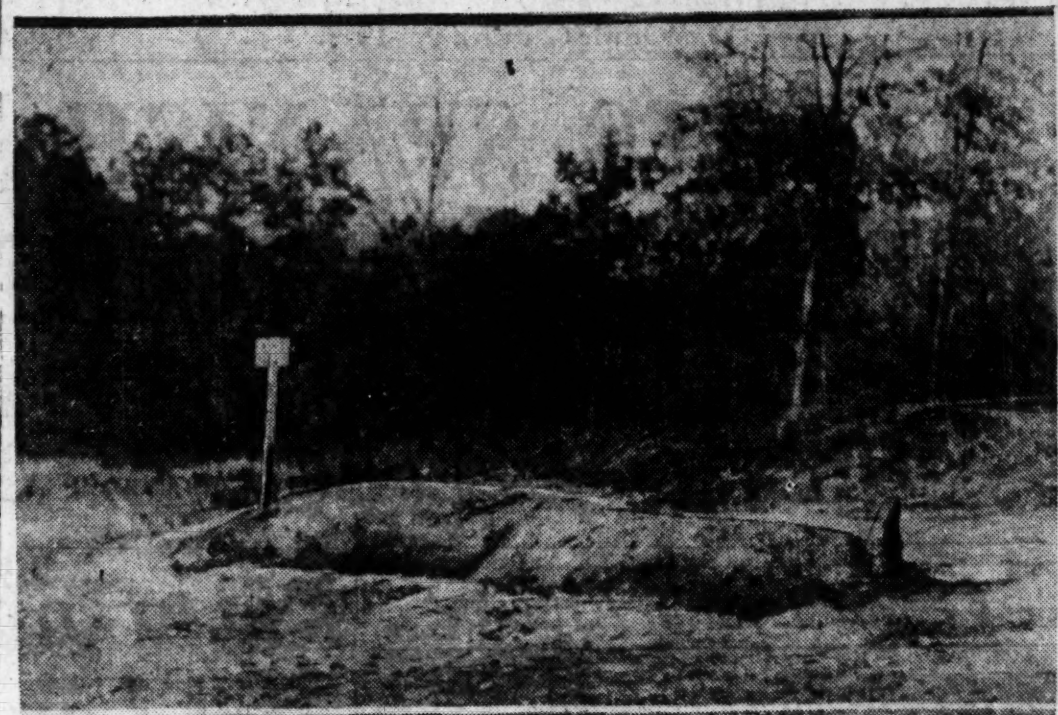

The alienists, Dr. William H. Pritchard, superintendent of the Columbus state hospital for the insane, and Drs. E. E. Garver and Robert Tarbell, operators of private sanatoriums near Columbus, asked Chester to permit them time to examine statements made to them by Dr. Snook yesterday and the results of blood and reactionary tests they made behind closed doors in the prosecutor's office.

Federal authorities were continuing their investigation of the alleged laxity of university officials in the handling of narcotics in the veterinary department, William Bartels, assistant United States district attorney, said.

All are withdrawn from "experimental" use, he reported.

Dr. and Mrs. Melvin T. Hix, Brandon, Fla., parents of the slain co-ed, will take the body to Binghamton, N. C., tomorrow morning.

State Awaits Extradition Fight Of Musician in New 'Insurance Murder'

Lives of two men may depend on the contents of this grave, where three years ago the charred remains of what was thought to be the body of H. K. Sligh, of Ocala, Ga., were buried. Sligh later was discovered in California, and the body buried thought to be that of an animal. With his companion missing since he spent the night at the Sligh residence on the night it was burned, Aubrey C. Hoover is being held in Florida on a murder charge, while Sligh is held on similar warrants. Police believe Harry Loving was slain and burned in the residence and his body identified purposely as that of Sligh, who vanished, to collect the latter's insurance policy of $50,000.

Ocala, Ga., June 23.—(AP)—With Harry K. Sligh in custody here on a murder warrant, the state today awaited the result of extradition proceedings in Daytona Beach, Fla., against Aubrey Carlyle Hoover, 24-year-old musician, also held on a murder charge, before proceeding further toward solution of the mysterious disappearance more than two years ago of Harry Loving, of Huntington, West Virginia.

Sligh was arrested last night in Fitzgerald, Ga., near here, on a warrant charging murder of Loving and Hoover was arrested yesterday in Daytona Beach on the same charge. Loving, according to the authorities, has not been seen since a night in 1926 when he was with Hoover in Sligh's home here. The home burned that night and Sligh disappeared, being located several months later in California. Meanwhile, it is alleged, claim was made for the $50,000 double indemnity policy on Sligh's life but it was not paid.

A body found in the ruins of the house was identified as that of Sligh and buried in Seneca, S. C. After Sligh was found alive he was returned here and tried for arson, being acquitted last November.

To Be Disinterred.

According to Solicitor-General Robert S. Foy, the body in Seneca will soon be disinterred in belief that it is that of Loving.

Both Sligh and Hoover were arrested on warrants filed on information and the case has not yet been investigated by the grand jury. Mr. Foy said today the next regular session of the grand jury would be in August.

According to information from Daytona Beach, Hoover's attorneys plan tomorrow to bring habeas corpus proceedings against the city in its fight against extradition to Georgia. Sheriff W. E. Tyler, of this city, who went to Daytona Beach to arrest Hoover, has sworn out a fugitive warrant in addition to the murder charge and if the city releases Hoover he plans to serve the second warrant.

Hoover has lived in Daytona Beach for the past two years, playing in various orchestras. He is said to have "hitch-hiked" southward from Huntington with Loving.

Sligh, since his acquittal for arson, has lived here. At the arson trial, the solicitor said, Sligh made an unsworn statement that Loving had spent the night previous to the fire in his home, and returned just before the fire in an attempt to rob him. Sligh said he knocked Loving down, overturning a kerosene lamp and thereby starting the blaze. Sligh, according to the solicitor, explained his subsequent disappearance was due to fright and amnesia.

Advices from Sheriff Tyler at Daytona Beach said Hoover denied any knowledge of the death of Loving. He insisted that he and his brother, James, who left Huntington, W. Va., with Loving on a "hitch-hiking" trip to Florida, had separated from the latter on a highway between Macon and Ocala. He said Loving drove off with a stranger, while he and his brother continued their journey in the automobile of another man they did not know.

Dean Shadeau, 18, of 1603 Evans drive, is in the Fort McPherson hospital in a critical condition with a bullet wound just below his heart, inflicted by a pal, Emmett Gossett, 18, of 1703 Langston avenue, in what is described to police as an accidental shot.

The shooting took place in Shadeau's home about 5 o'clock as the wounded youth was returning to a bedroom from a kitchen where he had been to light a cigar.

The boys had been together all day and had been to church together shortly before noon. After they returned home from church young Shadeau took his father's .38-caliber revolver from its shoulder holster and was showing Gossett how fast it could be worked, and that he was somewhat of a "gunman" himself.

During the late afternoon they again began to play with the gun. Shadeau told hospital attaches he had unloaded the gun and was showing Gossett how to "jerk" it from its holster. Shadeau then asked Gossett to "snap" the gun and snap it.

As he returned from the kitchen Gossett snapped the trigger, there was a report and a bullet took effect in Shadeau's left side just under his heart. He was rushed to the Fort McPherson hospital, only a few paces from the Shadeau home.

There were no persons except the two youths at home at the time, and Call Officers Paul Higgins and C. R. Herndon took Gossett to police station, where a charge of "shooting at another" was made against him, and he was released after posting a $100 bond. He will be given a hearing next Saturday afternoon.

Shadeau's father is a watchman at the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, and Gossett is a student at a local business college. He is the son of R. W. Gossett.

ALIENS ON ELLIS
BATTLE GUARDS,
MARINES CALLED

New York, June 23.—(AP)—The New York Daily News tomorrow will say that police reserves were called today to quell a rebellion of 65 aliens awaiting deportation at Ellis Island. Although government officials were silent, reports of the disturbance said that the aliens, who had been placed in a detention hall, rushed several armed guards who entered the hall in an attempt to keep them quiet.

While the guards stood in the corner menacing the aliens with guns, Night Superintendent Harry Snyder attempted to persuade the prisoners to desist. Meanwhile a call was sent for marine police, who helped the guards restore order.

Several of the aliens were placed in solitary confinement. Among those who took part in the disturbance were several men sent here recently from the west and described as gangsters.

BOY STRUCK BY AUTO
Mark Miller Injured When Knocked From Motorcycle.

Mark Miller, 18, of 8 Clay street, Buckhead messenger boy, was severely injured early Sunday night when knocked from his motorcycle by an automobile driven by an unknown negro, on Peachtree road south of Buckhead.

County officers investigated and found that the negro abandoned his car after crashing into the motorcycle. Miller was taken to Grady hospital, suffering from a fractured left ankle, is about his head and other minor injuries.

J. W. Willingham in Serious Condition at Grady.

J. W. Willingham, 48, of 300 Peters street, was taken to Grady hospital Sunday night in a serious condition with numerous cuts about his head and body he received when attacked on Humphrey street near Whitehall street by an unknown negro. Willingham was walking with L. W. Cook, 42, of the same address, when the negro appeared. Patrolman E. M. Hicks investigated. Robbery was given as the motive.

Hospital attaches stated that although Willingham is in a serious condition he will recover.

SENATORIAL IMMUNITY REMOVAL IS SOUGHT

Bingham To Introduce Amendment To Make Solons Answer for Speeches.

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, plans to propose at the next session of congress an amendment to the constitution that would strip from members of the congress immunity from prosecution for libel.

In making this announcement today, the senator declared much harm is often done by untrue and ill-founded statements upon the floors of the house and senate where they are protected by the constitutional clause providing that "any speech or debate in either house shall not be questioned in any other place."

"If the immunity were taken away," he asserted, "many attacks upon private citizens, corporations, religious sects and churches would never be heard."

The recent liberalization of the senate rules to permit discussion of executive nominations in open session has been seen by Senator Bingham as an urgent reason for curbing the remarks of his colleagues.

Giving that practically all discussions of nominations now will be held in open session, he said, "in order to protect the names and reputations of all citizens, of high or low degree, and with the view of deterring senators and representatives from irresponsible repetition of reports, rumors, hearsay evidence, derogatory statements and aspersions under cover of the immunity heretofore shielding them from consequences of such remarks when made in congress, it is my purpose to endeavor to abolish immunity."

"It is entirely possible," he continued, "at the present time to attack in the open any race of people or their leaders or representatives under the shield of immunity. Our forefathers never intended that this should be. It was their idea that we should consider in open forum such subjects as liberty and the conduct of our government."

He contended that through these shielded attacks many people were "legally defamed, their reputations ruined, their businesses harmed and their credit seriously impaired although they were innocent."

The senator would reserve the immunity safeguard to permit criticism of the president, cabinet officers or other government officials or employees, asserting the belief that this was one of the important functions of congress.

Protest Parade.

Paris, June 23.—(AP)—A widely advertised manifestation of former service men's indignation at the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement today melted down to a small gathering. Approximately 2,000 out of a larger number of the organization got in line and marched to the Arch De Triomphe without important incident. None of them insisted upon carrying a protest, as had been planned to Premier Poincare.

TAKES SLEEP TABLETS,
EATS HEARTY, DIES

Knoxville, Tenn., June 23.—(AP)—Despondent and with nervous system shattered by illness, Ed Neatherly, 35, swallowed 12 to 15 sleep-producing tablets here early today with suicidal intent. He died this afternoon in a local hospital.

Neatherly swallowed his tablets before the noon hour, partook of a hearty meal and then lapsed into the fatal stupor.

WIFE SLAYER RETURNS TO BE SHOT HIMSELF

Police, Waiting in Home, Fire on Man Who Shot Three.

Long Beach, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—John Keller, 45, who yesterday shot and killed his estranged wife, Ruth Keller, 25, and seriously wounded her alleged suitor and a policeman, upon returning to his home early today was shot by officers and probably fatally wounded.

Shortly before daylight the man returned to the house in which two officers had been secured. He climbed through a window into the room in which the policemen were waiting. They ordered him to surrender, and when he attempted to reach his pistol, shot him.

Keller was reported in a dying condition at the emergency hospital. George Finck, the suitor who was shot through the chest, was said by surgeons to be in a critical condition and Policeman J. W. Ballard was reported recovering. The policeman was shot through the abdomen and leg.

Keller, a pipefitter, unexpectedly appeared at home yesterday after an absence of several months, to discover his wife, mother of the six Keller children, with Finck, also a pipefitter, who had been a frequent visitor at the house. Seizing two guns the enraged husband followed Finck out a door and shot him before a group of neighbors in the front yard.

Officer Ballard, who with two newspapermen answered an emergency call, telephoned to police headquarters by Mrs. Keeler, arrived and attempted to arrest Keller. The man shot his wife, killing her instantly, and fired two bullets into the policeman's body as the latter attempted to draw his gun.

Keller seized the officer's pistol and fled.

Perils of Air Mail Trails Related in Special Series

The Constitution presents the ninth of a series of articles which show the dangers attending the duties of Rough Riders of the Air Mail, written exclusively by air mail pilots for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance. This interesting feature will be carried daily.

BY E. E. UNDERHILL, Mail Pilot for National Air Transport on the New York-Cleveland Run. (Copyright, 1929, by The North American Newspaper Alliance.)

FLYING THE MAIL THROUGH A MOUNTAIN PASS.

So many things have happened since I started flying the air mail that I don't know where to start telling about them.

I fly the night mail from New York to Cleveland over the Allegheny mountains, and usually make a day trip back with another load. Sometimes this schedule is changed. Most of the night flying has to be done by instruments. If my instruments ever go bad in that mountain section I'm likely to slip into a mountain at a hundred miles an hour. For night flying you've got to believe in instruments.

Last October I started at 8 o'clock one night from Cleveland for Hadley Field, New Brunswick, N. J., the New York air mail terminal. I was ferrying a plane back without a load.

I started from Cleveland. Low clouds were running all along the route. Electrical storms were reported also.

I ran into a bad line squall near Mercer, Pa. I tried to get over it and couldn't. It was too rough to get through. I couldn't do any better going back. It was rough all around.

Following Hole in Clouds. After a few minutes I got a break in the squall near Shippensburg, Pa. I could see the beacon there. The break was just a small hole in the clouds and the squall, but it was moving east. I got into the hole and flew with it. I could see a highway under me at times, and I kept circling round, keeping the axis of the circle running along the line of the road.

I got to Clearing Field, 130 miles from Cleveland, and panicked down. I stayed forty minutes. The storm didn't show any signs of letting up, so I decided not to wait any longer. It was storming all the way to Bellefonte, Pa., they reported. I got to Bellefonte, though, and re-gassed. I reached Hadley Field at 1 in the morning.

All the New York pilots were in Cleveland, except one, and I had to fly the New York-to-Cleveland route with a thousand pounds of mail. At 1:30 they had the plane loaded and I took off. By that time the storm had hit around Hadley. I got on a little way before I lost sight of everything. I started flying by instruments. I started flying by instruments. I finally got a hole near Sunbury, Pa., and could see lights there.

Bounded by the Storm. I went on to where I figured Bellefonte should be, and began to circle round. I found a hole, sighted Bellefonte, and landed there.

They gassed the plane up again and I took off for Cleveland. It was stormy all the way. The storm bounded you around so you couldn't see what was going on half the time. It was so rough the instruments for night flying were jiggling around from one position to another, so it was hard to tell anything by them.

I got into Cleveland at 5:45 in the morning. It was the first mail to get through in some time, because of bad weather.

Riding in clouds and flying the low spots you've got to watch out pretty close. I mean by "riding the high spots" that you fly up valleys and along river beds to get through the mountains and still keep under the clouds.

If you try to fly over them you are sure to have to go it blind. Sometimes, following the low spots, I circle clear around a place and come back from the other side, to find it without climbing over mountains.

You're got to be careful doing this, otherwise you'll slip into a mountain. Some of the best flyers get absconded sometimes, and then it's too bad.

Turning the Corners. In bad weather I fly through Woodward Pass in the Alleghenies. I know it just as well in the dark as in daylight. When you first get into it you fly along in the dark with the mountain sides close on both sides of you. When you get a certain distance it seems as though the end of everything had come, and there is a big wall right in front of you. You turn sharply to the right, and it goes on that way. Next you turn hard to the left, and so on. But if you don't figure it right, you're out of luck.

I had to fly through Woodward Pass one night when there was a line squall, and it was so rough that Collins (another mail pilot) lost his wings and had to jump.

December 22, last, during the Christmas rush, I flew 1,384 miles in twenty-four hours. The day before that I flew 800 miles, and December 23, I flew nearly 800 miles.

I went out one night from Hadley when it was so rough that I flew four hours and twenty minutes and never saw a thing but the instrument board. I came out of it only twenty miles below Cleveland. You sure do have to believe in instruments.

CANNON "IS AMAZED" AT DENNY'S PROTEST

Chance-Taking Prelate Says He Doesn't Question Sincerity.

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman of the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, today replied to the "amazing protest" of Bishop Collins Denny at Richmond against support in his efforts to stamp out adoption of a resolution pledging hearty co-operation to President Hoover to secure law enforcement.

"Concerning the resolution pledging hearty co-operation and support of the Richmond district conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to President Hoover in his efforts to secure law observance and law enforcement," the statement declared, "Bishop Denny is quoted as saying: 'I do not think it is within the sphere of the church to do such things. I fear that it means the ultimate division of the Methodist Church, for many will refuse to be dragged as a church into politics.'"

"Without questioning the sincerity of Bishop Denny in the position which he has taken, the overwhelming majority of his Methodist brethren believe that it is their right and their duty to assure the president of their support in his efforts to stamp out the lawlessness which is threatening the national life."

Bishop Cannon cited the resolution adopted by the conference at Richmond, despite Bishop Denny's protest, as "the best answer." The resolution pledged the conference to hearty co-operation and support of the president in efforts to strengthen the sentiment of law observance "among our people and to secure proper efficiency in the administration of justice throughout the land."

"Surely it is unthinkable," Bishop Cannon's statement continued, "that there should be any appreciable support by patriotic, law-abiding citizens of the position taken by Bishop Denny that a division of the church will result from the passage of resolutions by church bodies declaring that, as against the lawless element of the nation and its supporters and apologists, the church will give its hearty, undivided support to the president of the United States in his determination to secure law observance and law enforcement."

Contract Refused, STEVEDORES STRIKE. Vera Cruz, June 23.—(AP)—The Stevedores' Union went on strike yesterday after refusal of ship owners to sign a contract to pay the stevedores for loading and unloading by the ton.

On account of the strike cargoes were not removed from the Ward Line steamers San Jacinto from New York, and the Mexico, from Tampico. An appeal has been made to the secretary of industry to intervene in order to avoid suspension of sailings to Vera Cruz by ship owners on account of difficulties in discharging their cargoes.

MERCY FOR THE MERCIFUL—Blessed are the merciful; for they shall obtain mercy.—Matthew 5:7.

PRAYER—"Show pity, Lord; for we are frail and faint."

THE GEORGIA PATHFINDER.

The Pathfinder airplane, a Curtiss "Robin," to inspect the route, landing fields and other accommodations for the July air tour of the state, takes off from Candler field this morning. It will be piloted by G. C. Shealy, well-known Atlanta flier, and carry N. S. Noble, city editor of The Constitution, which, at their selection, stands sponsor for the air transport companies that engage in the statewide tour in July.

Georgia must become soon one of the principal areas of rapidly multiplying air services, the southern pivot of the postal air services in the south and of the passenger and traffic transports from north-east to southwest and return, and from all points north and west to and from Florida. That makes a strong appeal to Georgia cities on all those air lines to make themselves ports of air entry and exit by providing adequate and fully equipped airports.

The "Robin" will carry this message of inspiration over the route of the July tour, which will embrace the most important cities of the state between Dalton and Brunswick and across from Augusta to Columbus. The great aerodrome of passenger planes in July will carry into each of those communities the enthusiasm of an emulative spirit to make Georgia one of the best airport equipped states upon the map. The state's terrain makes that easily possible and the future interests of all the cities make it highly advisable and certainly profitable for each to have its popular commercial airport.

COTTON FIGHTING JUTE.

There is something of a battle royal going on before a subcommittee of the senate finance committee over whether or not a strongly prohibitive duty shall be laid upon jute products for bags and bagging. Urgent demands are made to shut out the cheap Indian products in the interest of stimulating the manufacture and use of cotton bagging made from the cheaper grades of cotton staple. It was represented to the committee that the latter use, once emancipated from the jute monopoly, would absorb hundreds of thousands of bales of cotton not merchantable to the textile spinners and weavers, and thereby afford substantial relief to the cotton growers of the south.

Makers of cotton cloth bagging stated that it was better than jute bagging in many ways and eventually more economical. The jute bagging is made mostly in India with the cheapest of labor and that which is made in the United States, being largely supplementary to the Indian output and owned by the same parties in both countries.

The run of the arguments, so far as published, seems strongly in favor of shutting out the jute bagging for four years, at least, until the cotton bagging industry is fully established and the use of its product become general and popular.

CRAPAUD MUST COUGH UP.

The plea of Premier Poincare to the French legislature to ratify the long-pending agreement between this government and a French commissioner for the settlement of the war debts owing by France to the United States sounds in the tremolo of pathos.

This government, with the consent of congress, has dealt with the French people in this matter with the most pronounced generosity and patience, scaling down their obligations enormously and offering every leniency in the terms and times of payment. Our representatives have scrupulously and sympathetically refused to make any demands of France that would tend even to embarrass her people and government.

But all our overtures of aid and friendship have been met with truculence and a callous disregard of national square dealing, until there has come a swelling suspicion that the politicians in the French legislature are almost ready to ratify their people's debt for their salvation as a nation.

A crisis has arrived, however, and not of our making. The debt agreement must be ratified before August 1, or the French government must hand over to us $400,000,000 for war supplies purchased in open trade after the armistice. Which explains the tears of Poincare as he pleads with his legislators to ratify the agreement and dodge that crisis.

A BIGGER HOME TOWN.

A striking lesson in public spirit is furnished by a fresh event in Chattanooga, our nearby Tennessee neighbor. The census of 1920 gave to Chattanooga an official population of a few more than 57,000, but all around the border of the city were half a dozen populated areas that contained almost an equal number of inhabitants as the city proper. But they had obtained individual charters on the assumption that thereby they would more surely secure home rule and civic economies.

In March last, however, most of those corporations voted to annex themselves to Chattanooga as a means of sharing in large city improvements and getting part in the prestige of a Greater Chattanooga. But the citizens of one of the richest and most populous villages—Alton Park, with its 7,500 population—voted to stay out and go it alone. Seeing the immediate advantages and increased property values that came to those who did annex, the Alton Parkers on Thursday last treated themselves to a second election on their own motion and voted to become Chattanoogans, so raising the city's probable census next year to the neighborhood of 140,000 inhabitants.

The decision was dictated by civic spirit and pride, willing to sacrifice some small local interests to the larger welfare of a stronger city and the inevitable profits of co-operation in making a compact and progressive community. It is a fine example of good citizenship, unselfish helpfulness, which we commend to some of our own neighbors.

STRONG SIGNALS OF PEACE.

It may be that the speeches by Ambassador Dawes and Premier MacDonald, in England and in Scotland last Monday evening, were, as the French would say, trial balloons to prospect public sentiment on disarmament from both their constituencies.

Even so, a pacific gesture is better than a provocative growl. In the present world-mindedness there is a definite and ebullient opposition to war as an instrument of international relations. The horror of it generated by the 1914-1918 orgy of "wholesale murder and hell" involving half of the human race, was not yet left of the souls of men, women and children in the civilized countries.

There are signs in some of those countries that rulers and diplomats who should foment a non-defensive war would be deposed or destroyed by their own people, who would assume to negotiate directly for arbitration and peace. The sentiments of the masses which compelled so general assent by governments to the Kellogg-Briand war renunciation treaty indicate how dangerous it will be to governors and cabinets of the future that dare to make wars not demanded by their people.

Democracy will not be a failure so long as it grows in power with peoples determined upon the peace of the world.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Modern Bull-Fights.

Little by little the ancient and honorable game of bull fighting is creeping back into France. It had never quite disappeared, to be sure. But since the police restrictions of half a century ago, it had been localized in southern regions. Nimes still has its bull-fight in the old Roman arena every Sunday in some time and so has Mont de Marsan. These games are far less exciting than in Castilla, and it is just for that reason that some of the finest Castilian matadors have been imported to stimulate things a little. Why should tourists flock to Spain to see a bull-fight? The French can put on just as good a one, and certain communities are going to prove it. Only there is the vexing matter of cruelty to animals, the poor old horses, you know. Public opinion might be roused and the fights be made unpopular. But Mont de Marsan has a versatile and inventive municipal council. Horses? It says. Who ever thinks of horses in this age of motorcars? We are going to use motorcars in our bull-fights! It's an original idea. Picadors and espadas in swift tiny "torpedos" dashing about the arena. It's a noble idea, too. The horses won't suffer, for to suffer, as in the past. In days to come the promoters may even use the airplane to swoop down on the bull, like eagles from on high. That will be even more original. There is, however, one drawback about bull-fights, which has so far not been eliminated, either in theory or in practice. That's the bull!

Kiss On The Mirror.

Not only are statesmen and generals busy filling the bookshelves with memoirs and reminiscences on war and peace, but the game seems to be contagious. Dozens of actresses, literateurs, journalists, policemen and even tenanciers of public tourist stations in Paris are hard at it. Josephine Baker started the mode for women. The celebrated Harlem woman filled 300 pages of choice French and had the volume illustrated with 40 "characteristic" photos by a well-known artist. Others followed; Mistiquette, Hugonette ex-Duflos, Dranem, Alencou. Just like Napoleon, everybody is writing or dictating his or her memoirs. One French critic, M. Bonabel, looking over the volumes that have resulted so far from this harmless writing or dictating of their own lives, has come to the conclusion that there have been three of the following: How beautiful am I! How intelligent am I! How remarkable am I! And he concludes by giving them a general name, which is at once spiritual and to the point. He calls them "Kisses on the Mirror."

In Poland's Parliament.

The Polish parliament counts amongst its members not only men who are picturesque because of their costumes—like former Premier Witos, for instance, who has never yet in his life worn a collar—but also men whose language is quite original. A peasant deputy by the name of Sekrzycki mounted the speakers' rostrum last night to pose a question to M. Zaleski on the subject of the protection of cattle against bears. "Until recently we farmers," he said, "lived in peace with the bears. Now, however, the government is unwilling to send a delegation to the mother bears to ask them to have a little more consideration for our calves. I know several eminent gentlemen in the government," continued the peasant deputy, "who are particularly fitted to talk to the bears. Let me hear from them." The diet roared with laughter as the speaker looked significantly at M. Zaleski himself. "If my proposal does not meet with the government's approval, I have another suggestion. Why not invite and have some of our wise law makers talk things over with the bears? It is in our national capital, just as we do with visiting foreign delegations. And the longer the visit the better, for the better we farmers will like it and our cattle, too," he concluded.

Sermons To Live By

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY.

Text: "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." Joshua 1:9.

There is an excellent little message on courage in "The New Success," upon which it will well repay us seriously to reflect.

The title of the article is "It Takes Courage," and this phrase is the implied beginning of each of the following paragraphs:

"To be what you are and not pretend to be what you are not."
"To try to do a thing which is wrong because others do it, or because it is customary and done in trade."
"To live honestly within your means and not dishonestly upon the means of others."
"To speak the truth when by a little prevarication you can get some special advantage."
"When mortified and embarrassed by humiliating disaster, to seek in your ruins the elements of future success."

"To refuse to do a thing which is wrong because others do it, or because it is customary and done in trade."

"To stay at home in the evening and try to improve yourself when comrades spend their evening having a good time."

"To remain in honest poverty while others are rich by dishonest means which you could easily use yourself."

"To refrain from gossip, when others are about to delight in it, and to stand up for an absent person who is being abused."

"Not to bend the knee to popular prejudice, but stand firmly erect while others are bowing and fawning for praise and power."

It Isn't the Engraving That Makes Money, But the Authority Back of It

By Robert Quillen

What is Law? In a monarchy law is the will of the king, and the people must obey it regardless of their own opinions.

In a land of freedom, law is the will of the people recorded in statute books. It is legal recognition of custom or popular opinion. This is not a mere theory, but an obvious fact. The consent of the governed is the foundation of law. And the much-discussed "disrespect for law" is a contradiction in terms, for if the people do not respect it, it isn't a law.

The statute books of all older states, and some of the new ones, are cluttered with so-called "blue laws" that nobody tries to enforce. They may have been law in the beginning, for they may have expressed the will of the people; but now they have no support of public opinion and therefore have no force or meaning.

If they echo public opinion, they are rules for enforcing the public will. If they do not express public opinion, they have no more force than a motor not connected with the power line.

Laws are not the source of power, but an expression of power's will. Roosevelt defended the lynching of horse thieves on the ground that such apparent lawlessness was necessary to enforce the law. "Thou shalt not steal horses," said public opinion. But the ordinary machinery of law could not enforce the will of the people, and to make their will effective they brushed aside their useless servants and enforced the law themselves.

In a land of majority rule, majority will makes law. In our land there is no written statute to require men to remove their hats in a theater, but popular custom and majority opinion require it, and men remove their hats in obedience.

Speed laws do not express popular will, and every man violates them with a clear conscience. Is speeding an evidence of disrespect for law? It is not. You speed, and yet you would not steal or make counterfeit money or kill a fellow man. Your speeding has nothing to do with law, for the source of all law is public opinion.

A law is not a law unless it works. The people do not respect law; statutes are violated because the law does not respect the will of the people.

If majority opinion desires apparent prohibition and secret drinking, the law will establish custom and the custom, not the statute, will be the law of the land.

The law, like the king's messenger, has authority only while delivering the messages of the king. While it expresses the will of the ruler, it thunders from Sinai. Any further word it speaks is without significance.

From the city Thursday shortly before the passage of the annexation measure and his return only a few minutes after Mr. Pennington had vetoed the paper brought considerable comment from councilmen, although both the mayor and Mr. Pennington emphatically denied that it was anything other than coincidence.

Mayor Ragsdale left for Columbus on personal business Thursday while council was in session. Acting Mayor Pennington vetoed the measure shortly before noon Saturday and Mayor Ragsdale returned to the city shortly before 1 o'clock, stating that he had just returned from Columbus. Both men denied that there had been a conference between them on the matter prior to Mayor Ragsdale's departure, and the latter said that if he had known that Mr. Pennington had contemplated vetoing the paper he would have requested that he defer action, as none had been taken until Tuesday.

Commenting on the paper Mayor Ragsdale said: "I have not examined the paper, but if the boundaries are fixed as I understand they are I should certainly have approved the measure."

Mayor Pro Tem. Pennington also described as "coincidence" the fact that he was absent from the council chamber when the measure was voted upon at the Thursday session. He explained that business forced him to leave the session early and the discussion of the annexation matter had come up when he was forced to leave.

Health Talks

BY DR. WM. F. BRADY

A CHANCE TO JOIN THE BREAD AND MILK CLUB.

Doctors 10 or 20 years ago left off preaching that all kinds of illness and poor health arose from overeating, but the near doctors and the queer doctors, mail order birds and short-cut healers are still going strong on the old line. The public seems to like it just as the public likes what Barnum used to provide. For you see we still have with us a tolerable amount of stomach trouble, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, intoxication, halitosis, acidosis, neurosis, prostris, avitaminosis or whatever you will, and how and again somebody tired of "pills and potions" and strolls down the pile among the freak shows for a change.

Some folk eat for strength, some eat for sociability, and some eat for example and because it is eating time.

Most people harbor a fond fancy that one must eat heartily in order to maintain health and efficiency, for you know that the way healthy young men and women look is just as long on the picture of the poor egg on the verge of a stroke of paralysis (apoplexy) or heart failure or uricemic colic displaying a trenchant appetite and gorging an enormous meal, while he proclaims how he has never been better than he is now.

With change the true picture of health in competition with the makeup that is indispensable on the cover of the clatrap magazine? Health is pink nose or rosy, not yet tangerine; compared with these gaudy hues health is pale, pale as youth, not gaudy nor sickly nor delicate but natural skin tone, fresh and clear. If you're very dumb and fail to appreciate just what I mean, regard any athlete, man or woman, who is rosy, pink, or skinned milk or sour milk, or fermented or cultured milk if preferred, and a two by four by one-half inch slice of bread or toast, or a plain salted cracker. The cracker or bread should be munched leisurely. This meal may be repeated at three hour intervals throughout the day. Each such meal yields approximately 200 calories.

If you're sick, keep out. If you're not sick, come on in. The B. & M. is no blooming luncheon club, I can tell you. If you do come in you had better not smoke on Blue Monday but suit yourself about that.

The Virkula Case of Government by Murder?

(From the Washington Post.)

The killing of Henry Virkula, Big Falls, Minn., merchant, by prohibition agents near Little Fork, Saturday night, in its essential elements is similar to other killings by prohibition agents of recent date. Here was a peaceful citizen, returning from an outing to his home with his wife and child, who was forced to drive a road utilized frequently by run-runners, but there was no reason to presume that he was carrying contraband. Nevertheless, two government agents, ordered him to halt, and when, perhaps because he failed to hear their command, or perhaps because he was afraid, he was facing highway robbery, he continued along his way, one agent swung a sawed-off shotgun into action. The body of Virkula's machine was struck by 26 slugs; Virkula was killed instantly by a slug that lodged in his neck.

The American judicial system is based on the presumption that an individual is innocent until he has been proven guilty. It is not up to the individual to prove his innocence; it is up to the prosecution to prove his guilt. Enforcement agents, however, frequently violate this fundamental principle. The agent who killed Virkula acted on the presumption that his machine was carrying contraband, and he was not to halt proved his guilt.

Testimony of the agent accused of the shooting is illuminating. His story does not tally with that told by Mrs. Virkula, who says that neither her husband nor her heard a command to halt. The agent says he was seated in a car with another officer when the Virkulas approached. Both agents got out of the car, one bearing a sign with the legend "U. S. Customs—Stop" and the other with the sawed-off shotgun. Because Virkula did not heed the command, the agent reached a verdict of guilty and executed the condemned man on the spot.

Another killing by a customs patrolman was reported yesterday from Michigan. The details of the killing were not fully disclosed, but a young man alleged to have been innocent of wrongdoing is dead at the hands of an officer, who obviously had no business knowing whether or not the victim was a lawbreaker.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, of the treasury department, is investigating Nevada claims that the company's customs and prohibition officers are prohibited except in self-defense. Apparently this order has been flagrantly violated, with loss of innocent life as consequence.

The free use of the highways and waters of the United States by law-abiding citizens is a right that should not be yielded by the people. No twisting of reasoning can make it right or lawful for any officer to shoot down an innocent man. The increasing number of official murders makes it imperative that the government shall forthwith put a stop to the use of firearms by patrols and dry agents.

Every citizen has a right to travel freely and to engage in lawful business. All officers are entitled to the benefit of the doubt. In case of suspected lawbreaking, the citizen should be arrested by peaceful means, and if necessary, by force.

Any bandit can point a sign reading "U. S. Customs—Stop." If motorists were so foolish as to heed the words of a sign, they would be in the hands of lawless men. The responsibility for killing law-abiding citizens upon the highway rests squarely upon the government.

TARIFF REVOLT HOLDS HOOVER

38.8 per cent effective. The farmer, he said, is certain to "come out of the transaction in much worse condition than he went into it."

"For every dime he gains by reason of the tariff he will be penalized a dollar in higher living costs," he declared.

Brookhart argued further that no matter how high rates are fixed on commodities of which a surplus is being produced, they cannot be effective.

Only Partly Effective. "Wheat is a classical example of this truism. With a 42-cent duty, the total annual benefit to farmers, according to governmental statistics, is only about $17,000,000. Were the wheat tariff fully effective, it would benefit growers about $380,000,000 a year.

The same condition, he said, exists as regards many other crops.

"If all agricultural rates in the Fordney-McCumber tariff were effective, it would mean that farmers' incomes would be increased about $250,000,000 a year. As a matter of hard fact, their aggregate benefit is less than $75,000,000. In other words, the farmers are getting only one-third of what they are entitled to, and things he buys and uses are effective, while duties laid for him, on commodities he produces, return almost negligible benefits."

Hull declared that sinister and selfish forces dominated the house tariff proceedings and unless the people be aroused, the tariff will likewise dominate the senate.

Calls Democrats to Battle. "Agriculture," he said, "for the ninety-ninth time is to be hoodwinked by the promise of a tariff of effective tariffs and a swindle, save as to certain minor specialties. Will the American farmers stand by and let it be done?"

He referred here to the vote of some house demagogues on the bill for the protection of local industries.

Caraway warned that the debenture would be attached to the tariff bill unless it is re-written to aid agriculture.

The net result of the house bill, he said, "will be great inequalities than before enactment."

COLLEGE HEADS FAVOR DEBENTURES.

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—A "surprisingly strong sentiment" for the debenture farm relief plan, opposed by President Hoover and twice voted by the senate, was reported among heads of agricultural colleges by the Washington Post as a result of a symposium it conducted.

The heads of the colleges, it had selected approximately 100 farm college heads from a list furnished by the agricultural department and had sought an expression of views from them.

"Of the answers received," it said, "fully 60 per cent favored the debenture, and argued that it was economically sound and that support for the plan was significantly more confined to any one section of the country."

One of those who opposed the debenture strike was J. F. Tigner, former federal commissioner of education here and now president of the University of Florida. Support came in similar form from the dean of Roscoe W. Thatcher, president of the Massachusetts Agricultural college.

SHIP REPORTS FLARE AT SEA.

New York, June 23.—(United News)—The Radio Marine Corporation tonight announced receipt of a wireless message from the steamship Buffalo Bridge reporting the sighting of a "flare of light" in the air about 1,410 miles east of New York.

The flare was sighted at 12:40 a. m., E. S. T., today, the message said.

The position given was latitude 40.04 north, longitude 50.57 west.

The message from the Buffalo Bridge said the flare was at an altitude of 10 degrees above the water, raising the possibility that it was an appeal for help from an airplane which had been forced down at sea and was concealed by the darkness.

The U. S. Coast Guard Company's airplane Silverstone, in which he took off from Los Angeles Saturday afternoon in his assault upon the record, was partly damaged, although the pilot escaped with a few bruises.

Georgia Budget Board Cuts More Than $3,000,000 In Appropriation Bill

Various Departments Slashed About 30 Per Cent But Many Must Accept Heavier Losses.

Every state department, bureau and institution supported by the general state revenues will be forced to run with decreased funds during 1925-26 if the appropriations bill, drawn by the state budget and investigating commission, is passed by the forthcoming session of the legislature.

More than $3,000,000 has been cut from the sums allowed during the biennium of 1925-26. While the former budget allowed $13,222,720.08, the proposed sheet asks for but $10,122,167.47. In most instances the various departments have been cut about 30 per cent but many will be forced to accept even greater decreases. The experiment station at Griffin suffers the largest cut, from $50,000 to $35,000, the biggest loss, being reduced from $50,000 to $35,000.

Major departments were affected as follows: The educational appropriation cut from $5,000,000 to $3,750,000; the state board of health, maintenance funds cut from $125,000 to $80,000 and the funds for the Atlanta tuberculosis sanatorium cut from $210,000 to $157,000; Confederate pensions cut from $1,300,000 in the general fund to $750,000; the state expected to be partly offset by the revenues from the sale of tobacco and cigarettes; the appropriation for the state sanatorium at Milledgeville cut from $1,200,000 to $800,000 and all other departments about in proportion. In practically every instance the affected departments and institutions had asked for substantial increases.

The commission in making its report to the governor and submitting the measure gave as its reason for cutting the fact that state revenues in the past have not met the requirements of the budget and set forth the folly of voting appropriations which cannot possibly be raised.

The personnel of the commission is as follows: Governor L. G. Hardman, chairman; Comptroller General William A. Wright, Attorney General George M. Napier, and the chairmen of the appropriations and ways and means committees of the senate and house of representatives, Senator Walter Hendrix, of Atlanta; Senator E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland; Representative J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette county, and Representative Paul Doyal, of Floyd county.

Department Schedule.

The complete schedule by department is as follows: Governor's contingent fund, cut from $25,000 to $18,750; Reward fund, cut from $5,000 to $3,500; General printing fund, cut from $25,000 to $18,750; Maintenance of Department of Agriculture, cut from $15,000 to $11,250; Statistical division, same department, cut from $5,000 to $3,500; Contingent fund, same department, cut from $5,000 to $3,500; Tick eradication, same department, cut from $50,000 to $37,500; Hog cholera control, same department, cut from $10,000 to $7,500; Chemical laboratory, same department, cut from $7,500 to $5,625; Chemist's office, same department, cut from $5,000 to $3,750; Tuberculosis eradication, same department, cut from $12,500 to $9,375; Pure food and drug division, same department, cut from $10,000 to $7,500; Fertilizer inspection, same department, cut from $100,000 to $75,000; Feed inspection, same department, cut from $60,000 to $45,000; Department of Archives and History, cut from $5,000 to $3,750; Department of Audits, cut from $25,000 to $18,750; Oil Inspection Department, cut from $21,800 to $16,350; Expense of collecting insurance tax, cut from $47,100 to $35,325; Common schools appropriation, cut from $2,000,000 to $1,500,000; Vocational education, cut from $150,000 to $112,500; Vocational rehabilitation, cut from $21,353 to $15,765.

HOOVER STUDIES FARM BOARD ON FISHING TRIP

Agriculture Secretary and President Fish and Consider Men.

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Secluded in his fishing camp on the banks of the Rapidan river near here, President Hoover spent a quiet Sabbath and planned to depart for the White House with his party shortly after sunrise tomorrow morning so as to be at his desk by the usual time. Arriving at the camp, which had been completed since his last visit, the president enjoyed his most extended vacation from the capital since his inauguration and tomorrow is expected to return with two prizes—a string of mountain trout caught himself in the cool streams of his reservation, and a rather definite idea of how will compose the federal farm board for the stabilization of agriculture.

Secretary Hyde, of the agriculture department, was a member of the party and it was believed that he and the president would sit through those names still under consideration and that some if not all of the final selections would be announced early in the week. More than 400 names have been recommended by members of congress, farm organizations and individuals for these positions and much speculation has centered upon the appointments. However, the president has gone forward quietly with his investigations of the various nominees and no definite intimations have been forthcoming of his intentions.

He had no more than arrived yesterday afternoon before he unlimbered his fishing tackle and set off for his favorite diversion. Last night the routine of camp life was broken by Mrs. Hoover reversing the usual order of things and doing the speaking over the radio while the president stood at her side. She spoke to the boys and girls of the 4-H clubs encamped at Washington and the address was broadcast nationally.

Second Year Is Hardest For Women, Third for Men

DIVORCE STATISTICS EXPLODE OLD THEORY

Washington, June 23.—(United News)—The old theory of married life that "the first year is the hardest" was exploded in an analysis just completed by the commerce department on marriage and divorce. It showed that more wives tired of marriage during the second year than any other period, while husbands found the third year hardest to survive. The survey, which covered the year 1922, revealed that "cruelty" is the principal ground on which divorces are granted. Desertion is a close second and unfaithfulness a poor third. Fewer couples with children seek divorce than those without children. More than twice as many divorce decrees are granted to wives as husbands and wives contest more separation suits.

Most marriage annulments are due to "fraudulent representations," it was found. The survey also revealed that the first year of marriage is the easiest for both sexes, the second year is the hardest for women, and the third year is the hardest for men. AMERICAN WOMAN HELD FOR POISON PLOT IN MEXICO

Mexico City, June 23.—(AP)—An alleged attempt at murder which had its origin in darkest Africa and the jungles of India came to light here with the arrest tonight of Mrs. Soledad Morales De Learn, Mexican wife of an American citizen. She was charged with a plot to poison William A. King, business rival of her husband and also an American.

King said that the two women were engaged in supplying zoos with animals captured in India and Africa and that an intense rivalry developed between them.

King recently arrived with two hipopotami for Chapultepec zoo. Mrs. Learn arrived a little later.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN No. 13

"Come, the dancing girl whispered. They crawled out of the tent to a sheltering patch of shrubbery without discovery. 'I cannot understand,' said Tarzan. 'How does it happen it is you who have saved me?' She smiled. 'I have come a long way tonight and we have far to go before we are safe.'"

together they set out across the country in the direction of the mountains. 'You are a brave girl,' Tarzan said, 'to run this risk for a stranger.' She drew herself up very proudly. 'I am the daughter of the Shrik Kabour ben Saden,' she answered. 'I should be unworthy my father if I was not'

risk my life for the man who saved mine while he yet thought me a common dancing girl. My cousin of this tribe told us the wicked plot. Then I came alone, bringing two horses. But when they arrived at the place where she had tethered the horses, they were gone! She gave a stifled cry of consternation.

ARZAN SAID TO HIS COUNSELOR THE GROUND. 'Li Adra, the lion, has been here,' he said, 'but they have escaped.' There was nothing to do but continue on foot. Often they stopped to listen for sounds of pursuit. Just as they reached a sharp turn in the trail, they were brought to an abrupt halt!

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR SALVATIONIST DRAWS THOUSANDS

London, June 23.—(P)—Albert hall was filled to capacity tonight by 10,000 persons for a memorial service to General William Brewster Booth, former head of the Salvation Army. To the stirring music of 200 bandmen of the Army, the procession bearing the body entered the hall and marched to the place of honor in the center.

Except for the coffin, surmounted by the hat and Bible of the general, there was nothing somber or funeral about the setting or the service.

Scarlet flags of the Army, mauve and white draperies of the hall and the flags of many nations gave color to the assembly. Following the coffin was the widow, wearing an Army uniform with a white and red sash.

Commissioner Catherine Booth, his daughter, and other members of the family and officers of the Army, who had nursed the general during his long illness, followed.

ITALIANS ATTEMPT TO RESCUE WINE, FIGHT FIRE FORCES

New York, June 23.—(United News.)—The solicitude of a mother for her child was rivalled by three Italians who were held in $300 bail each today after attacking the Brooklyn fire department in their effort to break through fire lines and save a store of aging red wine from the ravages of a $500,000 Brooklyn fire.

Firemen were drenching the last smoldering embers of the fire when, according to police, Thomas Passano, 47; Gaetano Deluso, 31, and Louis May, 27, tried to shoulder their way through the lines.

Forbidden to approach a shed toward which they gesticulated wildly, it is charged, the three men let go with their fists. A crowd gathered, and some of its members joined the would-be rescuers. One fireman was stabbed in the arm.

Police restored order, then the shed was investigated and was found to contain 150 gallons of red wine in barrels. The three men arrested are to be arraigned in federal court tomorrow, charged with being its custodians.

Negro Under Arrest As Hit-and-Run Driver; Two Accidents Charged

Alleged to have been the driver of a large sedan which figured in hit-and-run accidents Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, George Thomas, negro, of a Peachtree Battle avenue address, late Sunday night was being held at police headquarters.

Thomas was arrested Sunday night by Detectives Austin and Armstrong, who allege that he drove an automobile which Sunday afternoon sped away from the Spring street viaduct after side-swiping a car being driven by Councilman Harry York, a member of the police committee of city council. Following his arrest witnesses identified the negro's car as the one which late Saturday night struck and seriously injured John D. Grant, a 16-year-old messenger boy, at the intersection of Fort and Decatur streets. According to detectives, Thomas admitted having been driving about in the latter section Saturday night but said he did not remember striking any one. He was held on suspicion pending further investigation and the docketing of charges against him.

FREAK MISHAPS, NARROW ESCAPES SEEN AT ROME

Rome, Ga., June 23.—(Special.)—Two freak accidents occurred here this week, resulting in narrow escapes on the parts of all parties concerned. The first was that of a man named Daniel, initials unobtainable, who in attempting to pass a car on the River road, just outside of the city limits, plunged his car into the waters of the Oostanaula river.

The car was submerged but he escaped unhurt by cutting his way through the top with his pocket knife. The second accident occurred Saturday afternoon shortly before dark when Calvin Carter and Guy Worsham, of this city, stalled a Chevrolet coupe on a railroad crossing at Rockmart, Ga.

OSTRICH GIZZARDS RICH IN DIAMONDS, TRADESMAN SAYS

Washington, June 23.—(United News.)—The commerce department today announced the discovery of a rich new diamond mine—in the stomach of an ostrich.

Down on the Kalahari desert in South Africa, the ostriches aren't content to stuff their gizzards with gravel after the manner of an ordinary fowl. They hunt around in the rich diamond deposits of the region and gulp down a few sparklers. Samuel H. Day, trade commissioner at Johannesburg, S. A., vouched for the fact.

This strange habit has given rise to a new outdoor sport—hunting wild ostriches for the diamonds on their insides. Day reports one of these sporty birds had lined his gizzard with 53 stones.

Now he hasn't any gizzard.

SECOND TEXAS HUSBAND JAILED FOR POISONING

Mysterious Death of Young Mother Brings Quick Arrest.

Texarkana, Texas, June 23.—(P)—Two Bowie county (Texas) youths were in jail here tonight in connection with the deaths of their wives, alleged to have been caused by poison.

Chester Peavy, 25, was arrested late today and was being held until Texas state chemists at Austin could examine the vital organs of the body of his wife, buried Thursday, which was exhumed today at Spring Hill, 45 miles west of here, after her father had demanded an investigation of county officers.

Ocie Nix, 22, a farmer of New Boston, is to face a grand jury tomorrow to recount details of a confession officers said he made yesterday, that he administered his 17-year-old wife poison in a capsule which she thought contained medicine. The woman died last Tuesday in convulsions.

Mrs. Peavy, who was 24, died Thursday morning and was buried Thursday afternoon. Her father, Ed Hutchison, Friday demanded an investigation after he recounted details of the woman's death. He said she died in convulsions. This circumstance, coupled with what he described as a "hasty burial," caused him to present the facts to District Attorney R. G. Waters, who immediately ordered Justice J. C. Peck, Joe Sellers, of Spring Hill, to investigate. His report early today caused Mr. Waters to order an exhumation of the woman's body.

Peavy, according to officers, consented to the exhumation and denied he was in any way responsible for his wife's death. His father, D. A. Peavy, who lived with his son and daughter, said he could offer no explanation of Mrs. Peavy's sudden death.

Mrs. Peavy was the mother of four children, two of whom are living. The body was exhumed and an examination made by Coroner L. C. Howell. He declined to make a statement. District Attorney Waters said the vital organs had been sent to Austin. He also declined to make a statement, other than to say no further action would be taken until the chemist's report had been received.

A special grand jury was called yesterday to consider Nix's case. Nix was spirited away from the New Boston jail after threats had been made against him after news of his alleged confession leaked out.

Mrs. Nix died in convulsions, neighbors who were with her said. They told officers they thought at the time her death was due to heart failure. Later Nix's dog was found dead in yard under circumstances which aroused their suspicion and caused them to report the matter to the district attorney.

The body was exhumed and by a weight light in the lonely little cemetery an autopsy performed. Traces of poison were found, officers said.

Later Nix was said to have confessed he fed his wife a sandwich which was poisoned. He also was credited with saying it was his second attempt to poison his wife. He contended "family trouble" was the motive for his act.

Mrs. Nix was the mother of a five-month-old child.

Keith's Georgia.

The new stage show at Keith's Georgia theater this week has the personal endorsement of Manager M. L. Semon as the best bill of vaudeville that the Georgia theater has presented this year. In the headline position of the five-act bill of vaudeville is O'Donnell and Blair in a comedy classic called "The Plasterers." There are four other big-time acts on this bill.

On the screen the feature film is "Divorce Made Easy," with Douglas MacLean and Marie Prevost. This is a Paramount all-talking farce comedy.

Loew's Capitol.

"A Man's Man," with William Haines in the stellar role, is the screen feature at Loew's Capitol, plus a five-act bill of Loew vaudeville. With June Collyer in the role of his wife, Haines plays the part of a movie-struck chap who tries to crash the gate at Hollywood and comes to grief. A couple of rough and tumble fist fights enliven the sound film. Jean Barrios, in an elaborate female impersonation act, headlines the stage bill, sharing honors with Sol Gould, who, with a company of specialty artists, puts on a diversified program.

Howard.

George Bancroft's second all-talking picture, "Thunderbolt," opens at the Howard theater today for a week's run. The role is said to be admirably suited to the virile talents of the star, and he is supported by two popular young players, Richard Arlen and Fay Wray. Other features on this week's program at the Howard include an all-talking slapstick comedy, "Zip! Boom! Bang!" and a musical novelty by Lillian Roth, former star of Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

Rialto.

Opening the week's engagement with a Sunday midnight show, the Rialto offers "Road to Ruin," a Mrs. Wallace Reid production, all week. In the featured role is beautiful Helen Foster, whom last night's enthusiastic audience acclaimed. The story deals with the delinquency of youth, revolving about a young girl who is called to pay the supreme penalty for folly. It is likewise a sermon to over-trusting parents, bringing in the work of the juvenile court. Included in the program are a Vitaphone act, Pathe Fables and Pathe sound news.

Loew's Grand.

"Tide of Empire," a story of the gold rush of '49, is presented at Loew's Grand for the first three days of this week, the film being synchronized with musical score and sound effects. It is the picturization of Peter B. Kyne's popular novel of the same name and the cast includes such celebrities as Renee Adoree, George Fennell, William Collier, Jr., and George Duryea. There are current news reels and synchronized comedies also.

Alamo No. 2.

"Companionate Marriage," the first National picture based upon Judge Lindsey's book of that title, which comes to the Alamo No. 2 theater today, is a truthful picture of the problem faced by persons who enter the married state. Betty Bronson and Richard Walling are the "companionate couple" of the film.

Dekalb.

"The Showman Angel," Paramount's latest development in sound and dialogue, will be shown at the Dekalb theater today and tomorrow. Nancy Carroll and Gary Cooper are the featured stars in this gigantic story of the gay white way life of a Broadway Follies girl. Accompanied by one of the best musical scores, this picture also carries a powerful dialogue sequence that will literally thrill you.

Empire.

Douglas MacLean, king of the complex of the screen, is to be seen today in his first talking picture, "The Carleton Kid," an uproarious farce of an innocent typewriter salesman who is mistaken for a dangerous Chicago gunman, which is playing today and Tuesday at the Empire theater, corner Georgia avenue and Crew street. Doug sells a tough bunch of gangsters a carload of "typewriters" when the gangsters think they're getting a new machine gun he has invented.

OVER NEW PROGRAM AT KEITH THEATER

Acclaiming it as the finest show offered at Keith's Georgia this season, Manager "Marty" Semon late Sunday night wired advice to his theater staff from Birmingham, where he previewed the bill, to be unstinted in recommendation of the program which opens at the theater today.

"This is the biggest and most entertaining bill Atlanta has seen this year," Mr. Semon telegraphed. "Every single act on the bill is a clicker, and in my opinion it will prove the entertainment highlight of the year."

The new program will present Charles O'Donnell and Ethel Blair in a comedy act entitled "The Plasterers." Rogers and Wynne in "Now and Then," Madeline Patrice, well known in Atlanta, in "An Interlude of Melody," Howard Kane and Correll Ellis in "A Laugh and Song," and "The Six Rockets," athletic beauties.

Frankly advertised as a "lesson" picture, the "Road to Ruin" broadcasts a warning to American parents who may be too lax in the duties toward growing daughters.

The picture deals with the life of a pretty high school girl played by Helen Foster.

COMPANIONATE MATING IS HIT BY DEAN FRITZ

Says Legalized Polygamy
Preferable to Current Moral Trend.

River Forest, Ill., June 23.—(P)—Dean John H. O. Fritz, of Concordia seminary, St. Louis, today declared open and legalized polygamy to be preferable to what he termed "the current moral trend, particularly as suggested by companionate marriage."

Dean Fritz, who is attending the 34th triennial conference of the Evangelical Synod of Missouri, said "open polygamy or something worse is the thing toward which we are drifting. I believe polygamy is to be preferred to the situation one sees in the future."

The only remedy is found in the gospel. There is not one syllable in the Bible, from Genesis to Revelations, recommending incompatibility, mutual consent on clashing temperaments as cause or reason for divorce, nor will one find anything which even remotely suggests a companionate marriage idea.

Delegates to the conference met in Soldier field today in what was described as the largest and most representative Lutheran meeting ever held. Dr. W. A. Maier, of Concordia seminary, the principal speaker, declared what he termed the present trend toward atheism and said the remedy of evil rested in religion rather than education.

"An uneducated thief will steal a ride on a train," Dr. Maier asserted, "while an educated one will steal the whole railway system. Clarence Darrow says that only good habits will keep people from crime, but we say there must be something to inspire, to teach good habits. You can't save a drowning man by telling him to swim when he has never learned to swim."

LIGHTNING CAUSES CONVENT BLAZE; 22 NUNS ARE SAVED

Montreal, Que., June 23.—(P)—Twenty-two convalescent nuns were carried through smoke to safety tonight when lightning struck and set fire to the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Sault Au Recllet. Two members of the Montreal fire brigade were overcome and sent to a hospital.

The building was valued at $1,000,000. One hundred feet of the roof of the east wing and a small central pinnacle collapsed and part of the walls became so weakened that firemen fighting the blaze were forced to remove their ladders.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

ONE of the advantages of buying a General Electric Refrigerator is that you are sure of finding just the model and size to suit your needs. There are many models—as large or as small as your needs dictate. The price range is exceptionally wide, too. Thus you are assured of finding what you want at a price that is appealing—and the prices are very attractive. Whatever model or size you select you get a bargain, that much is certain. If you have any doubts on the subject, a visit to our nearest store will clear them away.

THERE are few things that can be bought for money that equal in satisfaction received, the pleasure, convenience and safety you get when you buy a General Electric Refrigerator.

You know that whatever the weather, you will have perfect refrigeration!

You buy, not just a refrigerator, but food safety for yourself and your family. The constant low cold at which foods are kept prevents deterioration and contamination over surprisingly long periods.

The improvement of menus is in itself sufficient reason for owning a General Electric Refrigerator. There are dozens of delightful dishes that can only be served when you own a modern electric refrigerator.

Economy of operation—low electric rates—freedom from attention—no oiling—so quiet you barely hear it—dirt, dust and moisture-proof hermetically sealed mechanism—maximum food storage capacity—beauty of design—temperature control on top—warp-proof construction... all these are details that appeal to the conservative investor who wants the most for his money—and gets the most by buying a General Electric Refrigerator.

THESE low terms and this long payment period were decided upon months ago. We wanted to set the down payment so low that anyone could afford it. We were determined to bring the benefits of General Electric Refrigeration within reach of every average family in the communities we serve. That meant setting the time-payment period so that it would meet the budget of the smaller incomes. To many who have bought during this sale, these terms are more liberal than necessary. That was to be expected. We wanted to make sure of appealing to everyone. With the close of this sale, these unusual terms will have to be withdrawn, of course. Wisdom suggests that you act now!

Program of Daily Activities Begins at Camp Highland

Many groups of business girls spent last week-end at Camp Highland, the Y. W. C. A. camp. Two of the groups, the Halliday class of Ponce de Leon Baptist church, and a small crowd from the Gulf Refining Company, had never been to Camp Highland before. The camp program of daily activities was started Tuesday morning. Mrs. Fred Patterson, chairman of the camp committee, spent Tuesday in camp and she is planning to come out that day every week to help with the program. Mrs. R. J. Bates is hostess and dietitian of the camp. Miss Lucille Crabtree, director, has entire charge of the camp, and she is assisted by a corps of counselors and junior counselors. Miss Virginia Sewell, who is in charge of swimming, has morning and afternoon dip periods as well as classes for beginners, intermediates and advanced swimmers. The camp's senior life saving classes will be started this week. Miss Vera Hixon, from the University of Georgia, directs the athletic activities, which include every ping pong, croquet, tennis and baseball. Archery has never been taught at Camp Highland before and is proving to be a most popular sport. The work in arts and crafts is under the direction of Miss Mary Hutchins. Many raffish neckties, silk ties, pillows and German silver bracelets are being made by the girls who are interested in this sort of work. The music and dancing are under the direction of Miss Charlotte Buras, of Birmingham. Miss Lucille Crabtree is conducting a class in tap dancing. The vesper services each evening and assembly periods in the morning are being directed by Miss Mildred Wells, business girls' secretary of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Esther Anderson, also of the University of Georgia, operates the camp store and assists in the direction of the athletic activities. Misses Margaret Stedman and Susan Morris are junior counselors and help with all phases of the program. The membership committee of the Y. W. C. A. of Macon, J. E. Carlton, chairman, will meet at Camp Highland Tuesday, June 25, at 11 o'clock. Every member is urged to be present and bring a guest. Reservations may be made for a 50-cent luncheon by calling Walnut 8961 before Monday noon. The group will leave the Y headquarters, 37 Auburn avenue, at 9:45 a. m. on Tuesday. Dr. L. BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

THE GREAT FIGHT.
BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Already he has won the fight. Who knows his cause is just and right.
—Happy Jack Squirrel.

Robber the Rat sat at the entrance to his hole beneath the old stone wall and watched Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and his family gather around their breakfast table, which was a big flat stone in the old wall. Robber's eyes grew red with anger. For several days he and the Squirrel family had been quarreling over the food put out every morning by Farmer Brown's boy. So far, Robber had had the best of it. He had always succeeded in putting to flight the Squirrels. Once or twice they had surprised him and made him run by the suddenness of their attack. But always he had returned like a fury and in the end they had fled.

So now Robber, as he watched them, was preparing to rush upon them again. He noticed that they did not appear to be hungry. Instead of eating they had gathered together and seemed to be talking something over. "I wonder what they are up to now," thought Robber.

As if in answer, Mrs. Happy Jack and the four half-grown members of the family left the old wall and climbed up in the nearest tree, leaving Happy Jack to eat his breakfast alone. Happy Jack settled himself as if he meant to stay. It was evident that that was a good breakfast.

"Only one," muttered Robber. "I'll put that fellow to flight in short order. When he sees me coming he'll waste no time in getting away."

So Robber rushed in his usual savage manner. He was sharp and Robber the Rat soon found this out. His own teeth were sharp, but somehow he couldn't seem to get hold of Happy Jack when he could do much harm. Presently Robber's one thought was to get away. He was whipped and he knew it. Never again would he meet Happy Jack in a fight. But Happy Jack didn't mean for him to get away. He meant to kill Robber the Rat.

BLIND BILL AID SOUGHT BY WOMEN OF SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., June 23.—(Special.)—The Savannah Women's Federation has addressed letters to State Senator Myrick and Representative Alexander, Mills and Grayson, asking their support of the proposed bill for the rehabilitation of adult blind, sight conservation, and prevention of blindness, with a suitable appropriation to make measure effective.

Additionally the women's federation is behind the move to eliminate the age limitation in education, thus permitting state funds to be used for the education of children of any age and for the education of adults.

As a precautionary measure the federation asks the county's representatives to resist any effort which would give priority for the squares of Savannah to be opened to vehicular traffic (except as already provided, thus being the passage of electrically operated street cars), if this matter should come up in the city's omnibus bill. No copy of the omnibus bill is yet obtainable, and the request to the legislators is intended to keep such a provision out of the bill.

Earthquakes Cause Entire Population To Change Villages

Wellington, New Zealand, June 23.—(Special.)—Renewal of earth shocks, which a week ago did serious damage, today caused the removal of the entire population remaining at Murchison to Nelson.

Virtually all settlers in outlying districts whose homes were destroyed now have been rescued. Some of them have traveled for three days almost without sleep to reach the concentration camps.

Two heavy shocks were felt last night at Farwell Spit, which extinguished lights. The shocks also were felt in the Takaka and Westport districts but no material damage was reported.

POINCARÉ ADMITS U. S. STEMMED WAR'S TIDE

Verdun, France, June 23.—(AP)—The battle of Verdun influenced the United States to side with France in the World War, Premier Raymond Poincaré said today at the unveiling ceremonies of a monument erected to commemorate the final battle that ended assault upon the fortress by the Germans.

"When the United States took her place at our side," the premier said, "the submarine war was without a doubt the principal reason, but opinions that had been given of France by combatants in the battles of the Marne, Artois, Somme and Verdun were not without influence on her determination — a determination on which was to depend, in a great part, the outcome of the war."

"The people of Lorraine who had just suffered once more the horrors of invasion, are passionately attached to the idea of peace," Mr. Poincaré went on. "But that peace must be simply a high sounding word nor even one of those forced ideas that each interprets for himself. It must be a substantial peace—durable and real so that they understand it only in the light of security."

The premier touched on the recently completed reparations accord in conclusion. "The people of Lorraine," he said, "will be satisfied and will remain in the front ranks of workers for peace provided treaties are respected and our reparations paid under conditions the government outlined and which the experts have just put into precise form."

President Gaston Doumergue, who had just been made a "citizen" of Verdun, after saluting Marshal Foch, commander of the French forces that battled at Verdun, dwelt on the same theme.

"At the end of hostilities no country in the world presented such a frightful spectacle of devastation," he said. "Those who were able to avoid it cannot be more animated than we by the passionate desire for peace. But the whole world ought to understand that, having been most sorely tried, we have more than anybody else a desire to be assured that peace shall not be merely a word but a substantial, durable reality."

Touching on domestic political strife the president reminded his hearers that internal discord was a bad example to the world for those who would wish to maintain international peace.

"I desire ardently to see France, which has at all times given such generous examples to the world, also to give an example of internal peace," he said. "A practice which if generalized can create a spirit which will kill war."

The monument unveiled today was designed by the Sculptor Jean Boucher, who was in the front line trenches when the last German assault broke in front of Verdun, July 23, 1916. The monument is erected in a trench made by German shells in an old rampart.

Touching on domestic political strife the president reminded his hearers that internal discord was a bad example to the world for those who would wish to maintain international peace.

"I desire ardently to see France, which has at all times given such generous examples to the world, also to give an example of internal peace," he said. "A practice which if generalized can create a spirit which will kill war."

The monument unveiled today was designed by the Sculptor Jean Boucher, who was in the front line trenches when the last German assault broke in front of Verdun, July 23, 1916. The monument is erected in a trench made by German shells in an old rampart.

THE UNKISSED BRIDE

By BERTA RUCK

SYNOPSIS.
Joy Harrison, living in London and working for Dr. Travers in Harley street, is a well-known novelist, and is being released from the engagement, the doctor tells her. Joy is a girl of 25, and has just lost a great deal of money through an unscrupulous collector and he will be forced to give up his house in Harley street.
Dr. Locke, a tenant, tells her that he has just been offered a practice with a comfortable villa in the south of France, which he cannot take up, and he suggests that she should take up the plan to marry a doctor. To his partner's surprise, she agrees. He then suggests that she should marry a doctor. To his partner's surprise, she agrees. He then suggests that she should marry a doctor. To his partner's surprise, she agrees.

INSTALLMENT XLIX.
AN ANTI-CLIMAX.
The count took a corner faultlessly. "Thou knowest Madame Travers must find in the man her possible defender; more, the defender of her children. For this basic reason a woman does not object, for instance, that a man's chin is scraped mercilessly against her smooth skin, though she might not endure the touch of a scrubbing brush."

"Which is often no rougher," sighed Alberto, reminiscently.
"It is only in things of love that the English (though of an ignorance, a crudeness indescribable!) lack brutality. Wherein they consider themselves superior, but thereby, 'summed up' the continental, 'they lose much, both for themselves and for the woman.'"

"For me," took up his sister, "Thou hast then not remarked Jean (in spite of the grrrrrrrr gift for psychology) what was most interesting about this young man?"
"Eh bien, what?"

"But—that little Madame Travers, newly married to a man young, good looking, magnetic in that quiet way that when an Englishman has it, he has it like no one else!—enfin that this bride preserves the face, the features, the atmosphere of a young girl completely without experience!"
"What?"

"Not to be mistaken, I tell thee! In these things it is not I who am ever wrong."
The young Frenchman drove for a moment in silence. He seemed to be making himself look again, mentally, at the household of these English acquaintances. Presently he said, "If what thou thinkest is right, there is then one Englishman who is not altogether of their simple crudity. It may be that many marriages would have been happier if the honeymoon had been postponed until the settling into the household and growing familiar with the ways had been over for some weeks. Not to mention that—"

"It may be," broke in his sister Alberto, "that this Travers seeks to make her ever more in love with him, this bride, and that he chooses not the stupid way!"
"The skeleton at life's feast you may ignore," as Geoffrey Ford put down in his notebook about that date, "but you cannot ignore that invisible writer who hovers to present the bill for every pleasure of which you have tasted; and who can never be trusted not to overcharge you!"

The writer's mother was being required to pay for every heartless flirtation during the last thirty years, which now seemed to her as an evening gone. Her next forty-eight hours on that sun-drenched coast of the Riviera were to appear to Pansy Ford as a century passed in Hades. She had come over here to try and meet Jim. Well, she had met him. Much good it had done her. He behaved true to type. As he had behaved in London three weeks ago; as he had behaved in their youth thirty years ago. Pity the mature, sophisticated woman beneath whose chic French frocks there had woken into freshly throbbing life her schoolgirl heart!

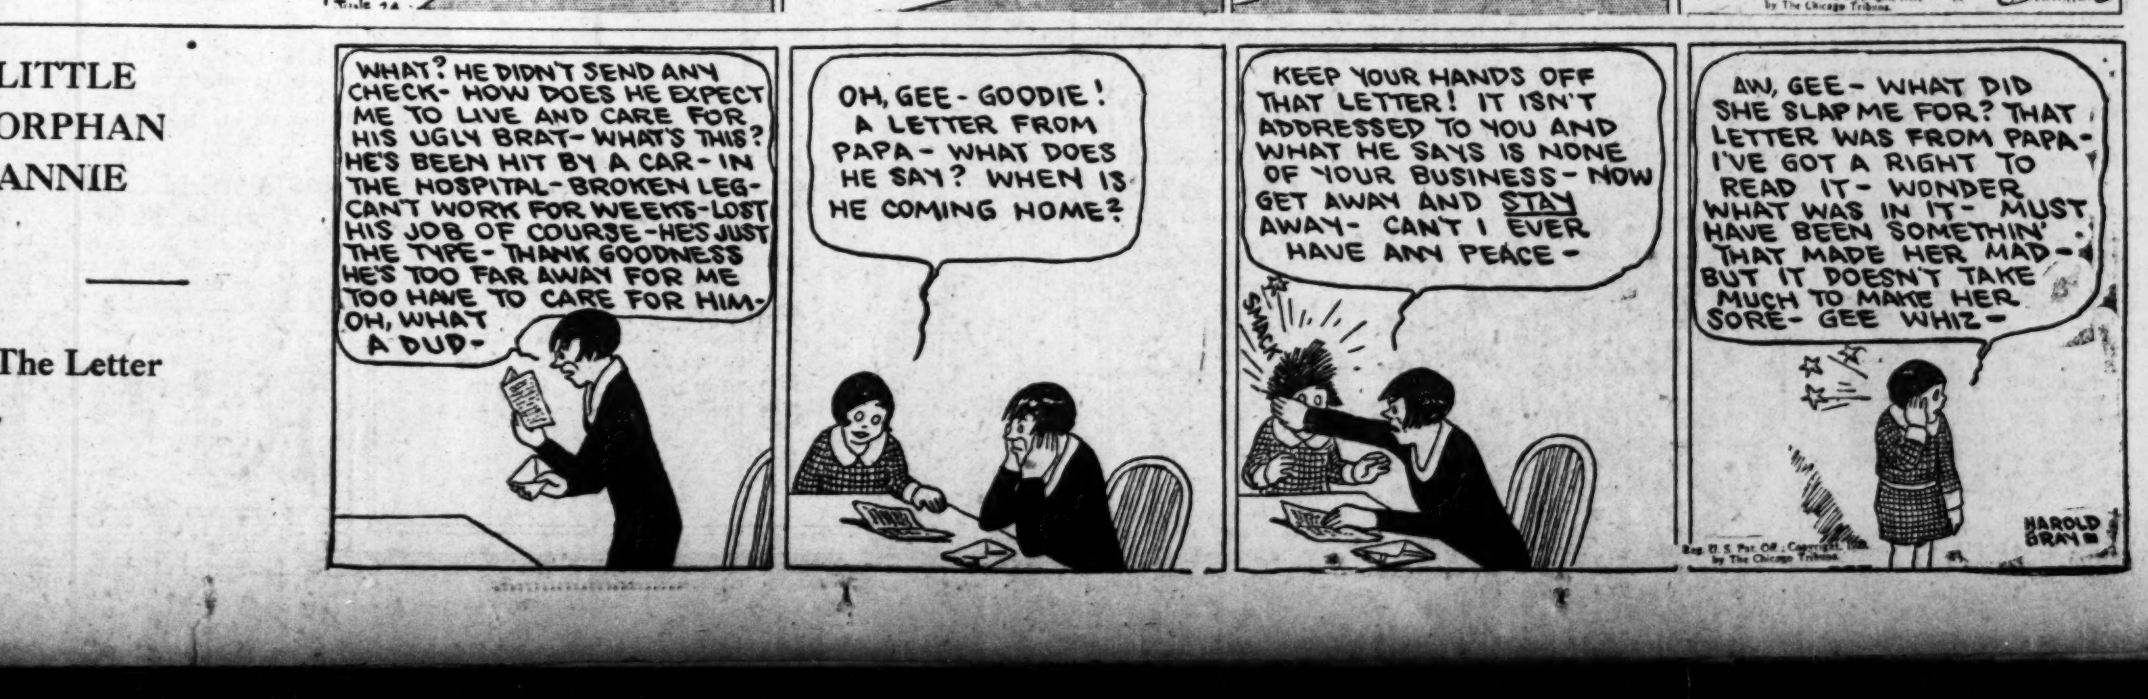

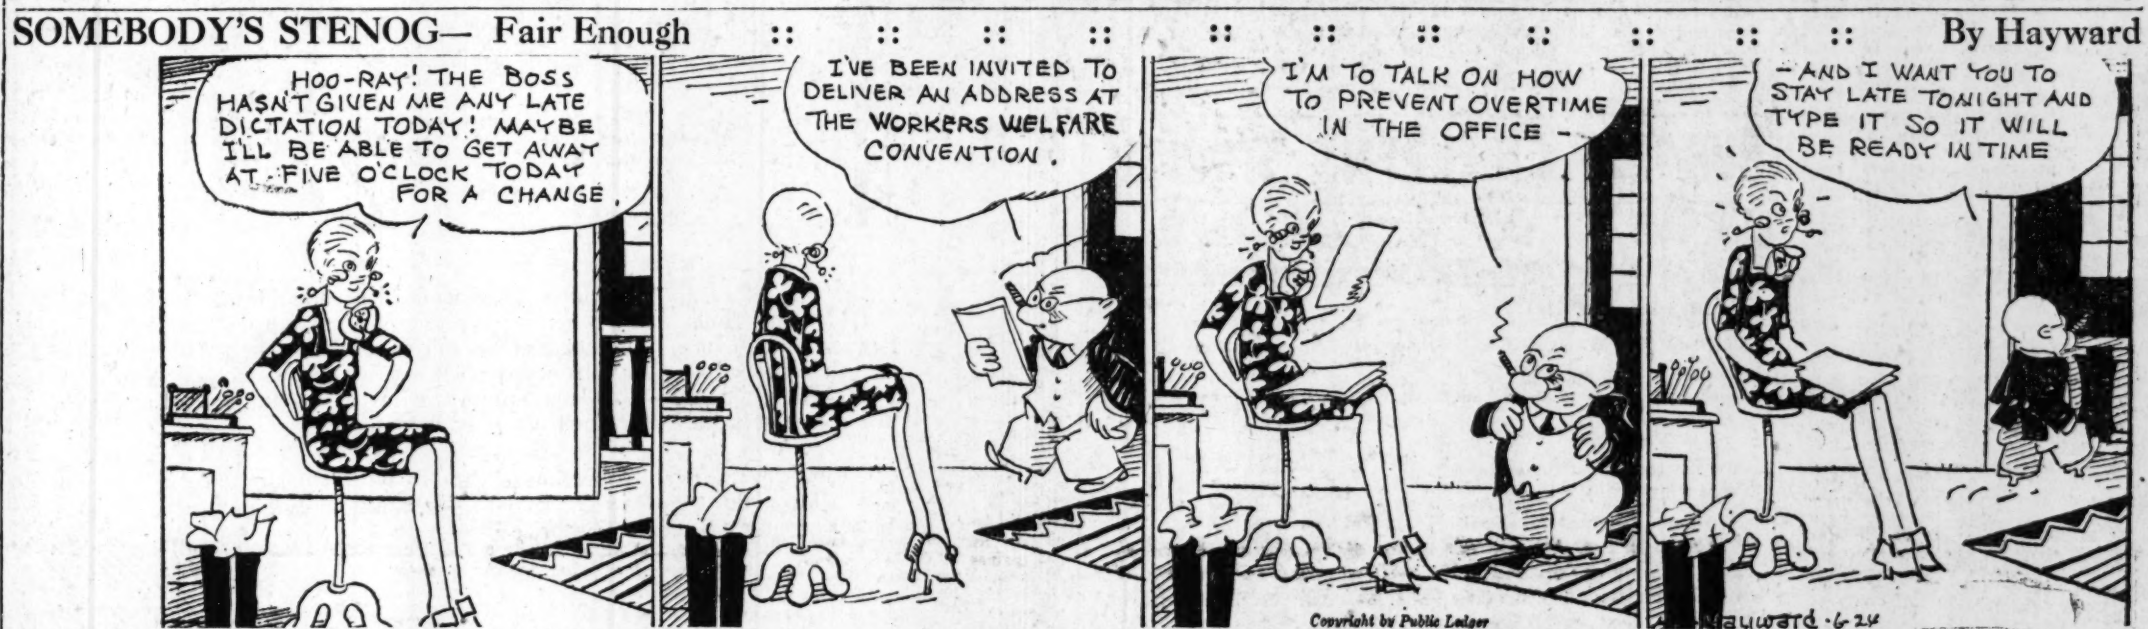

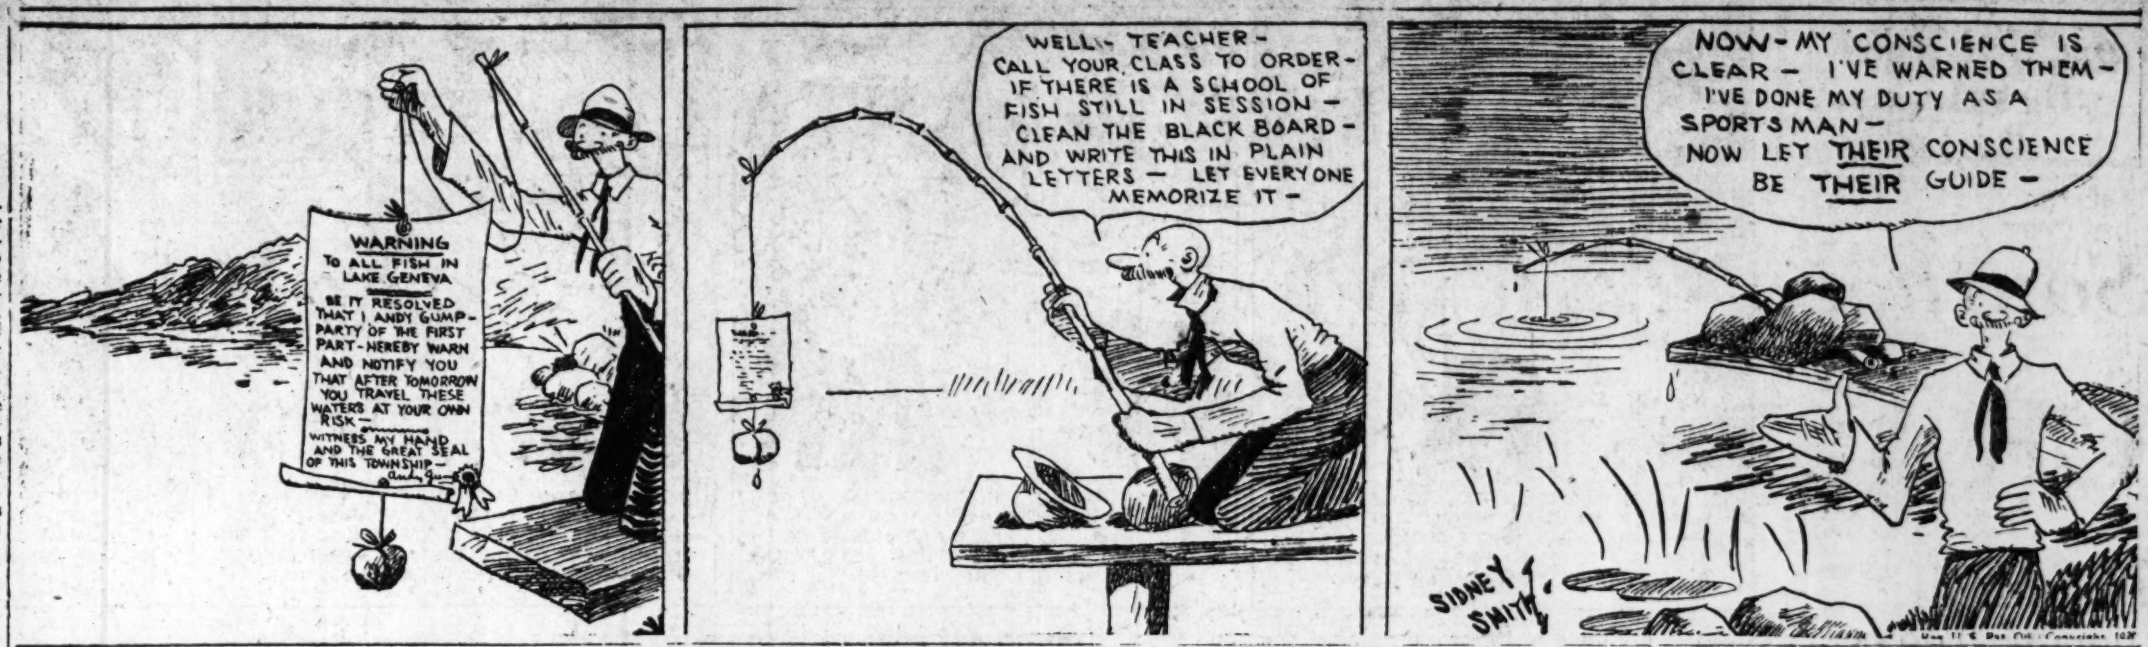

Every time Pansy looked into her bedroom mirrors to repair the makeup of her small, well-preserved face, to arrange her shingle into the perfect line, to put finishing touches to the set of scarf or wrap or chiffon flower, she told herself feverishly, "Something must happen. Things can't go on like this."

Things went on like that.
The bedroom telephone buzzed. The porter's voice announced a gentleman for madame. Down Pansy fluttered to find the lean, flannelled tormentor

Southern Zone Shoot Opens Today at Atlanta Gun Club

CRACKERS BEAT PELS, 7 TO 1, IN OPENER

ZONE SHOOT OPENS TODAY AT GUN CLUB

Best Shots in Country
To Compete in Affair.

By Dick Hawkins.
A full fledged bombardment, noisy but harmless, will break out at the Atlanta Gun Club this morning when more than 20 squads of shooters from 11 southern states meet in the first events of the southern zone championship.

Stars in plenty, from the best in the nation to the best in the zone, will be competing for the prizes and more than $4,000 in cash which will be shot for during the four days. All of last season's zone champions except the late Thad Crovatt will be present to defend their titles.

Harold McKenzie, Atlanta's own ace, will defend his title as singles champion and he also will have another mark to shoot at in the high-over-all title race. Last year at Tallahassee, Fla., he defeated Ed Flynn, of Mobile, and they tossed for the trophy. Flynn won the toss but his score was like sin all targets. Flynn will be here this year.

P. R. Earl, of the Starr (S. C.) ace, was high on all 10-year targets last year and he will be present to defend his title. Earl also won the doubles championship and Ed Flynn won the handicaps.

The shooting game is such that few except the present champions repeat their performances, especially when half a dozen state champions are in the field ready to wear the titleholders down.

Beside the zone stars in attendance, this shoot will be featured by the three greatest shots in North America. Frank Troeh, of Portland, Ore., high over all last year at the grand American, and holder of every major title in the bag, is one of the stars who will shoot for the money but will not be allowed to compete for the trophies. Mark Arie, the Champagne (Ill.) star, who has won more national titles than any man except Troeh, also is here.

E. E. Woodward, one of the finest 10-year marksmen in the game, will be here from Texas and he will be eligible to compete for the trophies. Woodward shot his worst score of the year and failed to win a title but he is one of the prime favorites in this zone.

Today will be given over to the class championships, which include 200 10-year targets for all classes from A to E. Shooting will begin at 9 o'clock.

DIXIE DRIVERS ENTER RACES

Dixie is coming to the forefront with auto race drivers, if the busy put in Sunday by Manassas, Va. Mills, of Lakewood park, and the auto race secretary is any indication of the southland's contribution to the aspiring speed boys.

By mail, phone and wire came all sorts of inquiries from all sorts of places, mostly from below the Mason-Dixon line.

G. B. Bracken, Jr., of Birmingham, who in the past has been a big winner at Macon, Chattanooga and his home town, called by phone and said he preferred to race at Atlanta than at any other point in the south. Bracken sports a Chrysler that is known as "poison" in Alabama.

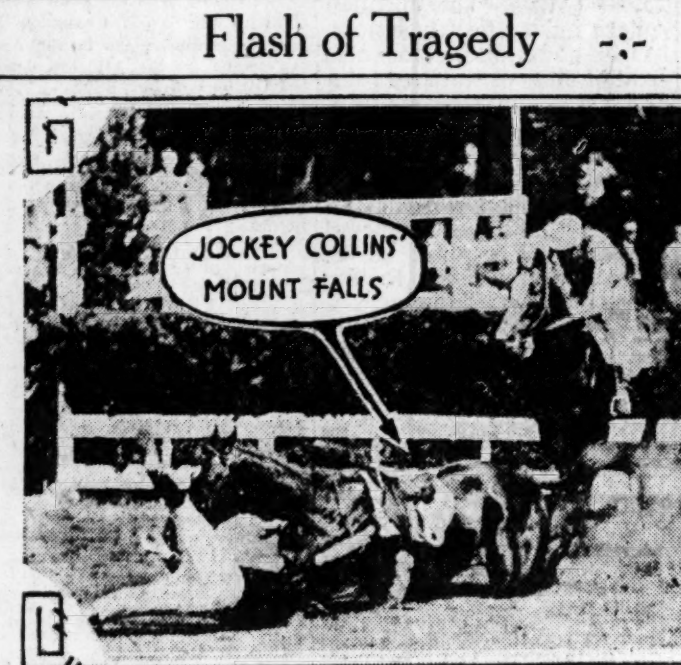

C. J. Waller, of Blakely, Ga., who has been seen in action at Atlanta, wrote in that he wanted a crack at the northern and foreign speed invaders and asked about the events which will be held here. Waller also said in his letter he would rather race at Atlanta than anywhere in the country.

Cleo Sears is wired by way from Lorimer, Iowa, about the Atlanta events, saying he would enter here if he completed his new racer in time.

"Speedy" Goff, one of the greatest dirt track drivers ever developed in the south, who has many victories to his credit in Alabama, called long distance and told a tale that sounded sweet to the management's ears. Goff said he had just about completed a race car made from a Model "A" Ford motor, and that he will enter Atlanta July 4 races if the car "winds up" like he expects it to.

The racing world in general and especially the dirt track contingent have been waiting for someone to develop an A-Ford racer. All the racing engineers have been secretly working on the idea and Goff may be the first one to develop that type of a speed buggy.

Ram Purvis, of Jacksonville; Roy Tanner, of Memphis; Tod Miller, of Tampa; Tony Bernardi, of New Orleans; and "Nite" Nash, of Nashville, are among a host of other race drivers who have inquired about the Independence Day speed card.

While the Athletics did not exactly take the Yankee stadium by storm as their fond admirers insisted they would, they established a positive superiority in winning three out of five games.

The Yankees battled with all the desperation of an inferior ball club fighting its head off to win those two nightcaps to the double-header.

They way is clear now for the sentimentalists to get out their pocket handkerchiefs and prepare to shed tears of joy as dear old Connie Mack wins that pennant he has been dreaming about ever since he broke up his champions in 1914.

The A's have it. Hurrah for their side. Stand by for the poets.

MASSACRE POSTPONED.

Few will fear for the A's in the series this week-end at Philly. The Mackmen probably will complete the wreck of the hated House of Huggins. And few will weep with Little Miller at the bier of his unbeatable ball club.

THE BIG SOB SCENE.

And then, perchance, in the gloaming of autumn John McGraw will win a pennant too. And McGraw and Mack will meet in a world's series.

What a sob session will there be, my countrymen. HEINE HORNS IN.

Jules Heinemann, the "Old Fox" of New Orleans, has cut loose a couple of incendiary interviews recently giving R. J. Spiller and Atlanta you-know-what on the Griffith deal.

Heine pulled a lot of old bunk about civic pride in the ball club—a quality of municipal mind that never existed in New Orleans under his own administration—and offered to advance the money to a syndicate of Atlanta citizens to buy the franchise and save it from "being undesirably reported as a white elephant."

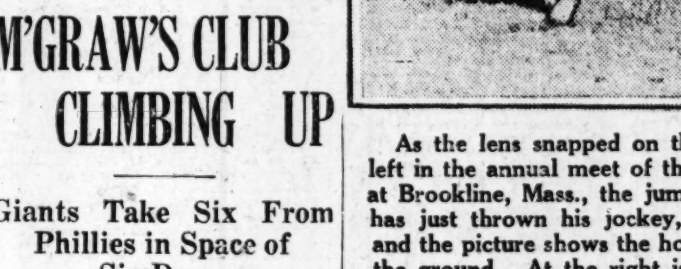

Heine, as usual, was 100 per cent wrong, both in SAYING he would advance money to buy anything and in his estimate of the baseball situation in Atlanta. Heine was just trying to cash in on a little publicity on his own hook, which, after all, is pardonable.

HEINE'S ECHO.

In connection with the visit of the Crackers to New Orleans, which opened Sunday, Bill Keefe said Friday in the Times Picayune:

The Atlanta Crackers, better known these days as the "Orphans" of the league (since no one seems to want them), will be here Sunday for a four-game series. It would be a terrible joke on our old college chum—we mean chum—A. J. Heinemann, if the "Orphans" took a couple of falls out of the Pelicans. Perhaps, though, "Heine" would be spurred on in his determination to buy the Crackers if it does develop that no Atlanta capital will save the ship.

"I am greatly surprised in the attitude of Atlanta folks," said President Heinemann yesterday. "You'd think they would have more faith in the future of their city. However, they ought to know best. In the face of their apparent reluctance to rescue the Crackers, I will stand to advance a reasonable sum for the purchase of the franchise."

Bad, Bold Yankees Another Hollow Shell

Victory of Athletics More Significant Than Mere Advance in Standing.

By William J. Chipman,
Associated Press Sports Writer.
New York, June 23.—(AP)—With the Athletics and the Yankees cast in spectacular roles and hacking away at each other to no particular decision in a crucial brush at the Yankee stadium, John J. McGraw seized an opportunity to slip quietly into Philadelphia and electrify the Phillies six times in four days.

This string of six victories not only gave the Giants the best winning record in the two majors through the week ended last night, but also hauled them to within two and one-half games of the league lead.

No one knows better than John McGraw that pennants ordinarily are won by the team with the greatest knack for winning second division opponents dry. The important battles between contenders usually result in something approaching an even break on the season, last year's Yankee rout of the Philadelphia Athletics in the first round of the playoffs being merely an exception.

GIANTS NEVER RELAX.

Working upon this theory, McGraw never let his team relax in its efforts against the trailers. After the Fourth of July, the Giants will have five games left against the eastern teams, as compared to the number of the Phillies six times in four days.

The Yankees led the American league attack with 104 hits, 53 runs and seven homers, winning five games out of eight. The Browns, with three victories in four starts, topped the American league in victories as the Athletics went through their only really poor week of the season, in nine starts and automatically correlated every offensive record for the two major leagues through the seven-day period. The Browns, with three safe hits, 21 of them home runs, and scored 97 runs. The Phillies hit 10 homers and the Cubs nine.

On the defense the Browns topped the circuit with just three errors and only twelve enemy runs, but Pittsburgh's record in the National was a greater feat as the Pirates allowed only 20 opponents to score in seven games. The Buccaneers won five out of seven, crowding the Giants for the week and gaining the league lead. The Braves and the Cubs erred least in the National league each team having but six misplays charged against its record.

The Red Sox, with 16 misplays, and the Phillies, with 14, reached the other extreme.

Last week's record for major league clubs of games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs followed:

Among them is Stiles Attaway, Tot Wilson and Ted Goodrich, all Atlanta favorites. Wally Eskew, the fighting man from Tennessee, Carl Hurley and Tommy Oglesby are other members of the Tuesday night program.

The first bout will offer Wally Eskew and Oglesby. "I am going along in fine shape and am better than ever," said Eskew. "I am going to win. He is one of Atlanta's best-known and most popular fighters.

The principals will take a light workout today as final preparation for the fights tomorrow night. The ring has been placed on the stage at the Atlanta. There isn't a bad seat in the house. Popular prices will prevail.

World Net Stars Are Entertained

London, June 23.—(AP)—A reception at the Roehampton Club where the tennis stars of a dozen countries who will start the championships in Wimbledon's big stadium tomorrow will be the guests, guests of the fitting send-off tonight for Great Britain's annual fortnight of tennis.

The International Tennis Club of Great Britain played host to players from all over the world.

The notable absentees among the international stars who participated in exhibition doubles at Roehampton today before 3,000 spectators were the American leaders, William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter. They apparently decided they had given London a good view of their 1929 game at the Queens Club in the past week.

Lili De Alvarez, runner-up to Helen Wills in the ladies' singles last year; the ring has been placed on the stage at the Atlanta. There isn't a bad seat in the house. Popular prices will prevail.

Every one of the 128 competitors in the first round matches in the men's singles are scheduled to play at Wimbledon tomorrow. The 96 candidates for honors in the women's singles are not due to start until Tuesday.

CLIMAX VICTOR DESPITE 9 HITS BY PELICANS

Atlanta Gets Early Lead To Win Fourth
in Row.

New Orleans, La., June 23. (Special).—The Crackers won their fourth straight game this afternoon by defeating the New Orleans Pelicans, 7 to 1, in another one of those ball games.

Climax Blenheim right-handed for Atlanta and effectively, although New Orleans got to him for nine hits. Said hits, however, were well scattered and profited the Pels not at all.

Atlanta got only eight hits, but made the most of them. They began scoring early in the game and kept it, always being comfortably ahead. The teams play again tomorrow afternoon.

The third inning with its five runs gave the Crackers a majority of their seven markers. Parham, first up, grounded out to Bonura, but Sheehan walked and went to second when Blenheim blasted a single to right field, for the first Cracker hit.

Silva fanned and the Cracker chances seemed to fade. But Jones pounded out a two-bagger to score Sheehan and send Blenheim to third. Dick Burrus walked, filling the bases and placing Fletcher Fehr in an unenviable position. Nine out singles to left, scoring Blenheim and Jones, while Burrus pulled up at second. Al Lopez capped the climax by slamming a two-bagger right down the middle, scoring Blenheim and Jones. Lopez went to third on the throw-in, but the side was finally retired when Haley grounded out.

PELS SCORE.

The Pelicans were slugging out a hit ever so often but never bunched them until the sixth, when the New Orleans crew rallied its only run. After one out when Dorman grounded to Haley and was safe when the third-baseman fumbled the ball, Blakesley singled to send Dorman to third. Bonura walked, filling the bases and placing Fletcher Fehr in an unenviable position. Nine out singles to left, scoring Blenheim and Jones, while Burrus pulled up at second. Al Lopez capped the climax by slamming a two-bagger right down the middle, scoring Blenheim and Jones. Lopez went to third on the throw-in, but the side was finally retired when Haley grounded out.

Atlanta retaliated in its seventh by pushing over the sixth run. Blenheim rolled one in front of the plate and went to second when Dorman grounded to Haley and was safe when the third-baseman fumbled the ball, Blakesley singled to send Dorman to third. Bonura walked, filling the bases and placing Fletcher Fehr in an unenviable position. Nine out singles to left, scoring Blenheim and Jones, while Burrus pulled up at second. Al Lopez capped the climax by slamming a two-bagger right down the middle, scoring Blenheim and Jones. Lopez went to third on the throw-in, but the side was finally retired when Haley grounded out.

The final Cracker run came in the eighth. Culp popped out to deep left field and Lopez flied to Fehr. Haley and Parham then came up with successive singles, while Sheehan bled to Montague, who fumbled. Haley singled on the error and Parham went to third, while Sheehan made first. Blenheim's pop fly ended the scoring for the inning and for the game.

The Pelicans never made more than one hit per inning except in the sixth, when it took three safe singles to bring in their only run. On the other hand half of the Crackers' hits were made in their one big inning, the third.

Canadians Plan For Scull Race

A feature of the Canadian national exhibition sports program in Toronto this fall may be a special senior single sculls race among Bob Pearce, of Australia, Olympic champion; Jos Wright, Jr., of the Argonauts; E. C. Toronto, holder of the Diamond Sculls for Great Britain; also a clubmate, Jack Groat, and Ken Myers, of Philadelphia.

In addition the Argonauts R. C. senior eight, which will try to lift the Grand Challenge cup in England July 2 to 6, may clash with the strongest United States eight in a special race. Negotiations are under way for the events in September.

Company, of Atlanta, one of the largest industrial building contractors of this section of the country, is just completing the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company plant at Gadsden, Ala., at a cost of more than a million dollars, and is now starting work on the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's textile mill at Rockmart, Ga., which is also more than a million-dollar project.

The Gadsden plant was finished by the A. K. Adams Construction Company in record-breaking time, and was built quicker than many people thought it was possible to construct a building of this magnitude.

The A. J. Krebs Company, of Atlanta, has just promoted and secured contract for the Medical Arts building, in Birmingham, which is a two-million-dollar project. It is no child's play for a construction company to go into another city, such as Birmingham, and secure a project of this type, and A. J. Krebs, president of this company, is to be congratulated upon his success in having secured this building.

Batson-Cook Company, of West Point, Ga., which is also an industrial builder, has been playing a large part in industrial development in Georgia and other southern states. It is now building the Ingalls-Rand textile mill at Thomaston, which is one of the largest mills of its kind in the country. It is constructing 450 employees' houses at Thomaston.

Wager & Co., of Atlanta, is another Atlanta building contractor who has been active for the past two or three years. It has just completed, or about completed, 11 school projects in the city of Atlanta, and now has under way an addition to the state sanatorium at Milledgeville, and the state sanatorium at Alto, Ga. In addition to these projects, it has constructed several large apartment buildings around Atlanta, and while relatively new in the game, compared to some of the older contractors in this section, has built up an organization that is equal to any in this part of the country.

All of the contractors mentioned above, and many more, are using Yancey Brothers' equipment, such as Rex mixers, Mundy hoists, Ingalls-Rand compressors, Caterpillar tractors, Ball wagon graders, and taking advantage of the service of Yancey Brothers.

East Point Firm Taking Some Progressive Steps

East Point, Ga., will soon be known far and wide by aviators and put on the air maps. This will be mainly due to a large electrical sign which A. G. Couch, one of the firm of the Atlanta Tent and Awning Company, has just installed on top of the company's high water tank.

The Atlanta Tent and Awning Company is just one mile from Candler field, and this large electrical sign in the form of an arrow is pointing the way to the landing field. Mr. Couch is already planning some extensive marking on the roof of the long manufacturing plant that will serve to guide aviators in the day.

Mr. Couch has already received several letters congratulating him upon his foresight in helping travelers of the air in locating their port of safety. One of these letters is from the Guggenheim fund, expressing gratification at the installation of this sign and thanking Mr. Couch for his foresight in the matter.

Another important progressive step by this old well-known firm, is securing the distributing franchise for the southeastern states for the new Shady-way awning. This is a new departure in the awning line and one that will quickly appeal to home and building owners everywhere.

Distinctive features of these Shady-way awnings include extreme simplicity of operation, sturdy construction and trim, tailored, handsome appearance, and a discriminating air of distinction to the home or other building they adorn.

The Shady-way is truly a serviceable awning as it does double duty as a shade and an awning all at the same time. While it is outside the window, it is operated from the inside and rolls down like a window shade. If pulled all the way down the top half will lie flat against the window, but the lower part will begin to slant

LIVE RESTAURANT MEN WELCOMING VISITORS TO CITY

The managers of the Varelas restaurant join with all other live Atlantans in welcoming delegates to the National Educational Association convention to be held here from June 25 to July 6.

These wide-awake men back of this up-to-the-minute restaurant are very proud of Atlanta and wish to make it a pleasure to eat with them. Knowing that all people cannot find time to eat at home, they have decided to serve hot meals 24 hours a day, and the late comer at 1, 2, or 3 o'clock in the morning will find the restaurant open and ready to serve.

As it is located at Peachtree and Carnegie Way, with one entrance on Peachtree and another across the way from Carnegie library, this restaurant is easy for visitors and home folks to locate. Having a large, well-equipped place, it is prepared to see that everybody has just the kind of food that they like best.

These men with long experience in the restaurant business in Atlanta, and cook the best food in season, and then serve it in a way that makes it a pleasure to eat with them. Knowing that all people cannot find time to eat at home, they have decided to serve hot meals 24 hours a day, and the late comer at 1, 2, or 3 o'clock in the morning will find the restaurant open and ready to serve.

To visitors and their friends, the Varelas restaurant says that it has not raised its prices, but has improved its services. Breakfast is 30 to 50 cents, luncheon 30 to 50 cents, dinner 50c, 75c and $1. They are so situated that they can arrange their tables to take care of any size party that wishes to eat together and have a good time while so doing.

$13,000 IS PAID TO WARE COUNTY POULTRY RAISERS

Waycross, Ga., June 23.—(Special.) More than $13,000 has been paid this year to poultry raisers of Ware and adjoining counties as a result of cooperative sales held in Waycross, according to a statement made today by Dr. R. J. Heyde, Ware county agent. The purchase of chickens, Dr. Heyde and Miss Lillian Mae Hancock, home demonstration agent, have cooperated with the A. B. & C. railroad, the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and the state bureau of matrics, in making the poultry sales a success. A large percentage of the sales were made through pick-up cars operated by the school.

AMAZING GROWTH DURING TEN YEARS SEEN BY AIR MAIL

Amazing growth of air mail during the ten years of its existence is shown by information received here from the aeronautics branch of the U. S. department of commerce by the Atlanta Envelope Company, the largest manufacturer of air mail envelopes in the southeast.

In May, 1918, the first half of the transcontinental air mail service, the southern end with terminus at New York, together with two private passenger routes, made up the 1,200 miles of operations. Air mail service was not a real factor, however, until the air mail act of February 2, 1925, empowered the post office department to contract for the transportation by air of mail by private interests.

Today more than 31,222 miles of air routes are in actual operation or scheduled. The department of commerce has raised the mileage of service airways from 2,041 to 10,700.

"The remarkable increase in use of air mail is evidenced by the steady growth of our business in air mail envelopes," said S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, in commenting on the situation in the southeast.

"Business concerns are now considering air mail as one of the most important means of communication and rely on it to save time and expense in transacting business. It has been proven that a letter sent by air mail gets twice the attention on the part of the recipient that an ordinary letter

Wright Distributing Co. Reports Good Business

The J. C. Wright-Distributing Company, of 1039 Marietta street, reports wonderful business in Bec special puncture-proof tubes. In addition to selling these splendid long-lasting tubes in Atlanta and Georgia territory, the company has been shipping them to near and far states.

Business has been exceptionally good in the Carolinas, and the first shipments to South Dakota brought repeat orders. Memphis business has been better than ever this year and their first shipments recently went to New Jersey and south Florida.

This puncture-proof tube is composed of built-up layers of rubber. At the thread or bottom side it has nine different layers of rubber, making it about an half inch thick at the place where all the trouble occurs. The real value, however, is not altogether in how thick the rubber is, but rather in the fact that the several thicknesses of sheet rubber act independently of each other across the bottom of the tube and when a small or large nail or sharp piece of glass goes through the casing, this foreign object pushes in first one layer and another layer of rubber. But each layer of rubber will not give away at exactly the same place, and when the nail or other object is removed the layers of the nine does, and those concerns which rely largely on direct-mail selling have found air mail letters productive of exceptional results.

There is only one cost to Bec tubes and that takes place when they are bought. One large dairy company in Atlanta has found them a very profitable investment, having put them on a fleet of milk trucks. Their delivery trucks have rolled over 170,000 miles of streets in Atlanta without having any tire trouble where these heavy duty tire tubes were used.

These Bec tubes, in addition to eliminating tire troubles and giving that sense of security and safety resulting from confidence in tires, save in tire miles, for thousands of miles can be driven with casings that with ordinary tubes in them would have to be discarded.

There is one set of Bec tubes in Atlanta that has been in continuous use for 38 months, and their owner has no thought of replacing them as yet. There are several other car owners in the Atlanta territory who have been using them two years or more and are pleased with them.

The J. C. Wright Distributing Company is easily located on Marietta street with plenty of parking space available and with two phones, HEmlock 4470 and HEmlock 4386. It would be well worth while when thinking about how to avoid tire troubles in the future, to give the concern a personal call or a ring or mail request for further information.
